Victim of Murder is Found in Deserted Home

LEWIS WILLIAMS DEAD WHEN POLICE ARRIVE ON SCENE

GANG OF RUFFIANS BLAMED FOR KILLING

Neighbors Tell Investigators Strangers Had Threatened Williams Earlier in the Day.

With a bullet through his heart, the body of Lewis Williams, 27, a civil engineer employed by the county, was found late Thursday night in the deserted home of his mother-in-law on De Four avenue. De Four avenue runs from Howell Mill road to Bolton.

Authorities who made the discovery of the murder found signs of a terrific struggle in the abandoned home, but repeated efforts to locate members of the family who lived there have proved unavailing.

Simultaneously with investigation of the mysterious killing in the De Four avenue district, detectives rushed to the home of Williams, in Ben Hill, and found that place of residence, too, had been abandoned. The house was as empty as the De Four avenue home.

Heard Sounds of Fight. Neighbors, declaring they heard sounds indicating a fight in the De Four avenue home, called the police, but when the authorities arrived on the scene, only the lifeless body of Williams was found. A pistol bullet had pierced his heart. No other shots had been fired so far as could be learned.

The body was removed first to Grady hospital. His wife and mother-in-law called at the institution and made inquiries about Williams. When informed that he was dead, they left without giving any explanation, it is said.

Later two women—thought to be the same—were seen near the undertaking parlors of T. C. Bazemore, Washington street, but only vague information could be obtained as to their whereabouts.

One Clue to Murder. The one and only clue to the murder apparently is one advanced by neighbors, who stated that wife in the day, Williams had engaged in a heated altercation with several rough-looking men in front of his mother-in-law's home. Who the men were, why the argument, or the result of the dispute, none could volunteer an explanation. Some said they heard these ruffians threatened to come back and "get" Williams, but this cannot be confirmed.

A later report had it that Holton Williams, a brother of the slain man, accompanied by three other men, called at the undertaking establishment shortly before last midnight and made a statement that Williams was attacked and murdered by a gang of unidentified gunmen. He gave no details and the police have been unable to locate him for questioning.

The authorities have little to work on. Nothing, apparently, can be done until relatives of the slain man are located, particularly the wife and mother-in-law, and guards have been placed at both Williams' home and that of his mother-in-law's.

CHAPLIN BRINGS NEWEST BRIDE TO HOLLYWOOD

Los Angeles, November 27.—Charles Chaplin sped through Hollywood by automobile early today, bringing to his Beverly Hills 40-room "castle" a new bride, who until Tuesday morning was Lita Grey, his leading lady in the films. The Chaplins left the special car in which they came from Empalme, Mexico, the wedding place, at Shorb, in order to avoid a public reception at "the station here."

"Just tell everybody we are happy and thankful and glad to be home," the comedian said.

CONGRESS MEETING MONDAY IS LIKELY TO BE VERY DOGILE

No Wild and Untamed Body, Like That of Last Winter, Will Plague Coolidge.

Washington, November 27.—Members of the "trouble-making" congress are assembling for their last session which begins Monday.

Among the various things that President Coolidge must have been thankful for Thursday was the fact that this congress, which made life miserable for him last winter, must die three months hence.

No congress ever staged such a rampage as this one did when it started on Teapot Dome, Harry M. Daugherty, Col. Charles R. Forbes, of the Veterans' bureau, and finally ripped up the cabinet, forcing two members out, and then, at the tag end of the wild session, shoved through a series of measures like the bonus, tax publicity and Japanese exclusion, which were obnoxious to the white house. From the white house point of view, it was a long, horrible nightmare and the very thought of that same congress flocking back here again is enough to spoil even a good New England digestion on Thanksgiving day.

New Congress March 4. But there is always something for a president to be thankful for, and Coolidge can take some consolation in the thought that after March 4 he will have a congress that will, in all probability, settle down quietly under the white house thumb and cause little trouble. The main source of his trouble, the La Follette balance of power in the house and senate, will disappear automatically March 4, and clear administration majorities will come into existence.

The only worry is the attitude of a few rather moderate independent republicans like Borah, Couzens, Howell.

Wales Tells Humorous Tale Of Experiences in America

BY CHARLES M. MCCANN. London, November 27.—An impromptu travelogue delivered by no less a traveler than H. R. H. the Prince of Wales, in which the heir to the throne told a Thanksgiving dinner gathering of his experiences in the United States, almost broke up the party when the turkey-day feast was suddenly transformed into a riotous reception for the royal speaker.

Wales was guest of honor at the Thanksgiving dinner of the American club in the Savoy hotel. H. R. H. began to get warmed up when a scattering of southerners about the tables leaped to their feet and grew hysterical in whooping it up for "Dixie" when the band played that air.

A tremendous ovation greeted H. R. H. when he rose to speak. He flustered and fiddled with his tie while the racket subsided, and then took the Americans on a tour of their own country.

"It's a month since I returned from that wonderful trip," he said. "I almost feel that I could now look out the window and see the Woolworth building and the Wrigley twins. It is hard to say anything about the trip, because if any of you read any American newspapers you know more about the story than I do myself."

"So many things, some of which I don't remember myself, happened in the newspapers."

"I have a big store of happy memories which will last a lifetime. In New York I did a bit of commencing. I met Will Rogers, who is a great man, although he picked on me, and when I played polo with him he did me for one of my ponies."

"Later I had but a glimpse of Chicago, where they make live pigs into little bits, and of Detroit, where they make little bits into automobiles."

WAVE OF ALABAMA CRIMSON SWAMPS HOPES OF GEORGIA

Football Enthusiast Sees New Field for Exercise of Skill of Psychoanalyst.

CHAMPIONSHIP GIVEN ALABAMA BY VICTORY

Crimson Plays With Confidence and Determination While Georgians Appear Dead on Feet.

BY LLOYD WILHOIT. City Editor, Constitution. Rickwood Park, Birmingham, Ala., November 27.—(Special.)—Fate brought the law of averages into play today in favor of the Alabama university—and tonight a Crimson banner flaunts its folds over Dixie battlefields. Alabama is champion of the Southern conference, and the gallant Red and Black of the University of Georgia is vainly trying to puzzle out how its offense was stopped cold and its defense shattered in the game that terminated in a disastrous 33 to 0 score.

They say that the last time the warring sons of Alabama took the field they were stale, with the result that they fell easy victim to a slashing attack from Centre. Today Alabama was repaid for its period of stalematedness, for the Crimson defeated a team that showed not a single flash of brilliance or one iota of determination.

Georgia Spiritless. Georgia's imposing record for this season is ample evidence of the high morale of her team, but turkey day found her spiritless—even depressed—and she was like lambs to a Crimson slaughter.

On the other hand, Alabama made up for any slump by displaying a spirit of confidence and determination that won her universal admiration, and a gallantry that added to the brilliance of her signal victory. Let there be no impression that Georgia quit on the job. The very reverse is true, for she fought a losing fight with an abandon that marked the famous old Athens institution as the mother of true sportsmen. However, there's no denying the fact that she was badly slowed-down. Her interference was weak and scattered, and her stars of a brilliant season were dimmed for at least a day.

In writing the story of the Georgia-Alabama game one is forced by cold circumstances to confine himself pretty exclusively to the Tuscaloosa end of the combination. These figures will tell the story within themselves: Alabama made 18 first downs to seven for Georgia. Alabama advanced the ball 635 yards, as compared to 375 for Georgia. From scrimmage Alabama advanced the ball 432 yards, as compared to 200 for Georgia.

20,000 Tech Football Fans Barely Escape Hospital Trip

BY K. L. EAGAN. Now that Georgia Tech has humbled Auburn by a one-yard nose dive, we fan folks can go back to our daily crossword puzzles.

And more than 20,000 pop-eyed enthusiasts will carry with them memories of a game that would have filled a lot of sanitariums if that meteoric baby, Wycoff, hadn't crawled over that line at the beginning of the last quarter with the well-known and equally prominent pigskin, giving free transportation to most of the Auburn lads, who found his speedway frame good riding if not productive of anti-goose eggs.

The crowd didn't have to go wild. It was frantic when it arrived. Everybody was happy throughout. And even the Auburn faithfuls went home with the justified feeling of unfranchised glory—for their battles put up a defensive game that would make Kid Horatius look for another bride.

Two bands jazzed things up during the game, one supplying melodies for Tech and the other interpolating Auburn's efforts. At the end of the first half both bands paraded the field, stopping in front of their respective stands to unfold their own anthem and elicit bedlam from the cheer leaders and their pupils.

The fair sex almost outnumbered the boys. It was an even break. And the girls put on their own show. When Hero Wycoff did his onions, one diminutive flapper fan got so excited she threw her arms around a blase youth sitting next to her and ruined the marvel in his soon-to-be-a-mustache.

The game had plenty of side attractions. In the north temporary grandstand sat a bimbo rich in the sublime happiness that accompanies a swollen hip. This exuberant foe of Brother Voletad started his cheering early and waxed cheerier as the game progressed, flanked, presumably, by intermittent leave of absence behind the stands, each departure and return being followed by more vociferous cheering. The stands backed him up, although, as it happened, each time he returned from a pilgrimage he forgot

EGYPTIAN SOLDIERS IN KHARTOUM DEFY BRITISH EJECTION

Handful of Artillery With Only 20 Rounds of Ammunition, Swear To Die Fighting.

LEAVE ONLY ON ORDER FROM EGYPTIAN KING

New Cairo Cabinet Almost Upset by Sudden Arrest of Four Alleged Conspirators.

London, November 27.—With only 20 rounds of ammunition and surrounded by superior forces of British and Sudanese troops, the handful of Egyptian soldiers in the Sudan have defied the British army to eject them, and have sworn to die fighting, according to a dispatch from Cairo to the London Times.

The intention of the Egyptians to stand their ground, despite the order of the British ultimatum that they evacuate the Sudan, was transmitted to Lord Allenby, British high commissioner to Egypt, in a telegram received last Tuesday, but just revealed.

Events in the Sudan are cloaked in a censorship, imposed by the British following the murder in Cairo of Sir Lee Stack, sirdar of the Egyptian army and governor general of the Sudan.

The telegram was signed by representatives of the "officers and men of the Egyptian artillery" at Khartoum. The men informed Allenby that they would have only upon order of King Fuad, who is the supreme head of the Egyptian army.

Allenby submitted the Egyptian soldiers' threat to the Egyptian cabinet of Premier Ziaur Pasha. While sensational rumors flew about the streets, the cabinet discussed the stand taken by the soldiers and finally dispatched a plea to them not to resist the expulsion order.

"Resistance only would result in useless bloodshed," Ziaur warned the angry soldiers, pointing out that the government already had protested against the enforced evacuation.

With the Egyptian cabinet urging the troops to depart peacefully, the situation is now believed to be improving.

CABINET ALMOST UPSET BY ARREST OF PLOTTERS. Cairo, Egypt, November 27.—The Sudan arrest Thursday of four Egyptians, two of whom had been members of Egyptian cabinets, for complicity in the murder of Sir Lee Stack, nearly wrecked the puppet, British-controlled cabinet of Premier Ziaur Pasha.

Three members of Ziaur's cabinet resigned when they learned of the arrests by British soldiers. The cabinet's downfall was averted when the British acceded to Ziaur's proposal that the arrested Egyptians be turned over to Egyptian authorities. When the British agreed to this, the resignations were withdrawn.

Nakras Bey, famous nationalist minister of the interior and vice governor of Cairo; Barakat Pasha, minister of the interior in the late Zaghlul cabinet; William Makram Obied and Abdel Rahman Fahmy were seized by the police, who surprised them in their beds.

Obied is one of the extreme nationalists who was exiled with Zaghlul when nationalist agitation seemed to menace the supremacy of Great Britain in the Nile valley. Fahmy was once sentenced to death for complicity in a murder campaign directed against Britons in Egypt, but was released from prison.

The collapse of the Ziaur ministry probably would have been a signal for serious disorders in Egypt. To form another pro-British government probably would have been impossible. The setback in which the British held Premier Ziaur Pasha is believed by their action in turning the four arrested politicians over to the Egyptian government.

17 ARE DROWNED AS BOAT IS SUNK

Gales Whip Coast of Southern England, Tearing Vessels From Their Moorings.

London, November 27.—At least 17 men are known to have been lost at sea as storms and gales raged Thursday along the coast of southern England.

The British steamer Harley sank in a gale off Portland, and her crew took to the life boat, which overturned. Seventeen of the crew were drowned and only two were saved.

The Harley foundered in an attempt to float the 1,200-ton cross channel steamer Dieppe, which was driven aground at the entrance of the New Haven harbor early in the morning.

The Dieppe was finally refloated and her passengers, disheveled but cheerful, were safely berthed after a five-hour ordeal.

41 COACHES CARRY 1,800 SCHOOL KIDS TO LINCOLN TOMB

Aboard the Lincoln Pilgrimage Special En Route to Springfield, Ill., at Moberly, Mo., November 27.—Across northern Missouri a remarkable caravan was passing tonight. It was a "caravan" of 41 steel coaches comprising three special trains, and it was bearing more than 1,800 Iowa and Missouri school children to Springfield, Ill., where tomorrow they will do homage at the tomb of Abraham Lincoln.

The Wabash line all along the way was cleared to allow this remarkable carrier to pass without interruption.

The pilgrims will be escorted to Lincoln Square, where an oak tree will be planted. In the afternoon, the "trek" to Lincoln's tomb will be made and a wreath laid upon the sarcophagus.

REIGN OF TERROR BREAKS OUT AGAIN BETWEEN CHINESE

Truce Between Rival Tong Shattered Three Hours Before It Was Due To Expire.

New York, November 27.—Assassins' bullets today ended the life of Goog Chong Food, laundryman, and reestablished the tongmen's reign of terror in Chinatown.

The truce, under which Hip Sing and On Leung had suspended hostilities after 15 of their number had been slain, was shattered three hours before it was due to expire.

for all non-proletarian elements who strive to disintegrate the proletarian dictatorship.

Although Trotsky's friends believe that the present movement is intended to render him politically innocuous, Stalin says he does not favor reprisals or harsh treatment of party opponents. He declares there is no danger in the present controversy of splitting the party, adding "We have only to struggle against Trotsky and eliminate his menshevik ideas."

Seek to Avoid Dissension.
The whole campaign has been introduced, it is said, to avoid renewed dissension within the communist ranks. Unlike last year's controversy, however, when Trotsky found support in many quarters, especially among the young communists and military cadets, the war minister this time is almost deserted. There are few even of his avowedly out-keen supporters who dare take up his defense in view of the all-powerful elements in the communist party which are arrayed against him.

Numerous resolutions are coming in daily from the provincial branches of the communist party, pledging the fullest support to the central committee's attitude toward Trotsky. Following his tactics of last year, the war minister maintains a discreet silence. He has not yet uttered a single word, either in speeches or in the press, and there are indications that he does not even attend to the ordinary routine of business in his office. The executive work of the war council is now directed by M. Pronze, Trotsky's assistant.

Political observers seem to think that Trotsky's adversaries have scored a complete victory over the war chief, but they believe that the party leaders will not attempt to dethrone him altogether, for such a measure undoubtedly would produce a profound reaction among the rank and file of the army, who regard their leader very highly. Also deep resentment could be looked for among certain sections of the population, which consider the war minister the main member of the present government.

LEWIS ORDERS PENNSY MINERS BACK TO WORK

Seranton, Pa., November 28.—John L. Lewis, international president of the United Mine Workers of America, today wired George Isaacs, president of district 1, to order the 12,000 employees of the Pennsylvania and Hillside Coal and Iron company, who went on strike Tuesday morning, back to work at once.

Failure to comply with the international president's demands, it was stated tonight, may result in Mr. Lewis' coming to this section immediately to take charge of the situation, and if necessary revoke the charters of the eight local unions who complied with the strike order issued by the general grievance committee. The men say they will settle the trouble through their own grievance committee or not at all.

Diseases traced to constipation are many —get permanent relief with Kellogg's Bran

Why does constipation breed other diseases? Because it floods your system with dangerous poisons. And the longer you suffer, the more poisons accumulate. That is why constipation should be relieved at once.

Doctors recommend Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled. They know it brings results because it is ALL bran. And only ALL bran can be 100 per cent effective in relieving constipation.

ALL bran — Kellogg's — sweeps, cleans and purifies the intestine. It acts as nature acts. It makes the intestine function naturally and regularly. If eaten regularly, it will bring permanent relief in the most chronic cases of constipation—is guaranteed to do so or your grocer returns your money.

Eat at least two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases, with every meal. You will like the wonderful Kellogg's Bran—so crisp and nut-like—so different from ordinary bran, which are most unpalatable.

Eat Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, with milk or cream. Sprinkle it over other cereals. Cook it with hot cereals. And by all means try it in the recipes given on every package.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, made in Battle Creek, is served in individual packages by the leading hotels and restaurants. Sold by all grocers.—(adv.)

FRIES SKEPTICAL OF 'DEATH RAYS'

Washington, November 27.—"Death rays" and similar alleged discoveries are regarded with skepticism by the chemical warfare service of the war department.

"Those who oppose any military establishments and would leave the nation defenseless make use of exaggerated stories of the supposedly supernatural powers of gas," said Brigadier General Fries, chief of the chemical warfare service, in his annual report.

"Along with the supernatural gases goes the continual talk of death rays, electrical currents and the like which will destroy all life at great distances. Practically all of these ideas are just as foolishly wrong as the supernatural gases."

He said chlorine gas, which has previously been used in treating colds, has been found to cure whooping cough.

"It is a boon to childhood such as is not found once in a generation," General Fries said.

"Tear gas has been put to many practical uses," he continued, "especially by police who use it to drive barricaded criminals out of hiding places and for quelling riots in jails and penitentiaries."

Halifax, November 27.—The four-masted schooner Veronica, which recently was towed into port after her master had stopped the United States liner President Harding on the high seas and regaled him with a weird tale of piracy, was in further trouble today.

She was taken into custody by Sheriff Haul, acting as marshal of a local admiralty court, on libel proceedings instituted by the owners of the steamship Gardiner, who want $25,000 salvage. It was the Gardiner that picked up the Veronica off Cape Sable and towed her here.

MISS BELLE BENNETT FAVORITE IN ATLANTA

Miss Bennett was leading lady of the Forsyth players, a stock organization which closed a record run two weeks ago for more than a year, and enjoyed wide popularity in Atlanta.

During the last few weeks of her engagement here she waged a feud with John Littel, leading man, which resulted in a demand by Littel for an apology. He carried his demand to the Actors' Equity association. Littel is still waiting for the apology.

Leaving Atlanta, Miss Bennett went to the coast, where after a successful engagement in stock she entered the moving picture field.

A sensation was caused by announcement of her engagement to Windemere, which revealed former romances in her career and brought to light the claim of a former admirer that he and Miss Bennett were husband and wife.

Two Are Arrested In Alleged Plot Against News Co.

New York, November 26.—Discovery of a plot which cost the American News company $60,000 caused the arrest today of Gustave Gerber and Andrew Nekritz on charges of forgery. Gerber was repaid by detectives to have made a confession involving 20 agents of the American News company and the Union News company operating stands at the Grand Central, Pennsylvania and Hudson Tube terminals.

The forgeries are alleged to have been perpetrated on credit slips through a system whereby union news agents would be credited by the American News with returns on periodicals which actually were not returned, but were kept on the stands for sale.

Detectives who made the arrests said they saw Gerber and Nekritz slip $260 as their share of $960 obtained a single day through the forgeries.

and Capper, who entertain some views not in good favor at the white house, but who are always inclined to be reasonable.

Recesses Monday at Noon.
Congress formally reconvenes Monday at noon. After a brief session, committees will be named to notify the president that congress awaits any word he may have for it. Tuesday the president's message, just finished, will be sent up by messengers and read by clerks in the house and senate—a reversion to the prosaic custom which prevailed before Woodrow Wilson began reading his messages in person at full dress joint sessions.

After the reading of the message, adjournments will be taken, republicans will issue inflammatory statements, democrats will issue other kinds of statements, and then on Wednesday the legislative wheels will begin to creak in their accustomed laborious way.

From all indications the last stand of this congress, which was so wild and untamed last winter, will be a docile affair. La Follette continued to wield his balance of power, but the fact that his power passes March 4 works against him.

La Follette Only Fear.
The only real fear that the administration has is that La Follette may decide to filibuster against the appropriation bills and force an extra session before July 1. If the Wisconsin senator has such a plan in mind, he has given no intimation of it. Many think he will not attempt such a final battle, inasmuch as he would have little power in an extra session if he should force it.

Were his balance of power to continue, the likelihood of a filibuster would be greater. The probability is that he will permit the appropriation bills to go through unless some grave condition, on which he desires to focus the attention of the country, should develop.

The first event on the program is the caucus of senate republicans Friday morning, when a new leader to succeed Lodge will be chosen. Senator Curtis, of Kansas, has no opposition for this post. Borah will be selected as head of the foreign relations committee in Lodge's place. There may be some discussion of policy, but little else will be done at the caucus. Republicans favor ignoring all side issues and going ahead with the appropriation bills in order to get them out of the way by March 4 and secure funds for conduct of the government after July 1, when the new fiscal year begins.

Muscle Shoals First.
The senate takes up Muscle Shoals

first by a previous agreement. This question probably will be referred back to committee. The house begins on the department of interior appropriation bill, probably Thursday.

As this is a continuation of the old congress, there will be no speaker-ship or leadership fight in the house. Gillett and Longworth retaining their present respective positions. The senate will continue to be presided over by Senator Cummins, president pro-tem. Dives does not come in until the next congress meets.

The president's message is expected to be confined solely to routine recommendations, a renewed admonition in favor of utmost economy and cursory repetition of former suggestions yet unacted upon, such as membership in the world court, cooperative marketing legislation and the like.

REIGN OF TERROR BREAKS OUT AGAIN

Leong tong. Two automatic pistols were found in an alleyway along the slayers' line of flight.

CHINESE LAUNDRYMAN IN CAROLINA FOUND DEAD

Newbern, N. C., November 27.—Charlie Long, Chinese laundryman, was found dead in bed here this morning with a bullet wound through the right eye. A pistol with two cartridges exploded lay beside the bed.

While every indication was that the man had committed suicide, Coroner J. L. Hartfield moved this afternoon that he would go behind the coroner's jury verdict of "suicide."

Fearful that the death of the Celestial might have some connection with the long war, the coroner asserted that he would have an autopsy performed to ascertain if the bullet was from the pistol found beside the body and would attempt to establish ownership of the pistol. It was stated that there apparently was no local reason for the man to kill himself, and the coroner expressed the view that he may have committed suicide because of fear of being reprisals upon himself, but that he intended to investigate the matter fully.

20,000 TECH FANS ESCAPE HOSPITAL

which team he was supporting when he left for fresh fortification. The climax came when he returned immediately after the lone Tech touchdown, with a smile as broad as a boulevard, and threw his green derby into the air with an improvised yell for Auburn. When informed by his recent cheerleader that he was all wet, he exclaimed: "All wet, thasright; but I'm sympathizing. 'Ev'body needs sympathy."

DRINK OR DRUG

POISONING requires ELIMINATION. The

Neal Treatment acts as an ANTIDOTE for these poisons, creates a longing for drink or drugs and overcomes the diseased condition. (No Bromides used). Dr. H. Conway, 10 years with the "Ketter" in charge Neel Institute, 229 Woodward Ave., Atlanta, Ga.—(adv.)

to Bermuda and suited the action of the word.

"And there was a dog—a little shaggy pup, bubbling over with the infectious enthusiasm. This baby canine leaped over the rail when Auburn made its first threat of the game in the second quarter and couldn't be chased off the playing field—not for long. Whenever Auburn was penalized or it looked like the referee was giving a bad break to the visitors, Lil Ol Pup dashed for the referee, emitting a series of barks that sent the cheer leaders into another spasm. The dog was faithful to the end, but curled up and played dead when Wycoff strutted his stuff.

During the intermission of hostilities at the end of the first half, four funny men took the field and gave a comprehensive exhibition of how football is played in England. They were dressed in a la bolshevik and got a lot of laughs. They split the stage with the two bands.

The speculators were there, too, and there was a lot of money flashed about the stands, but everyone seemed to be wary and little changed hands. One aggressive sportsman stuffed a roll of greenback in his habitations and said he would have to save his money.

It was cold, please, plenty chill. But there wasn't anyone who mentioned it. Too busy watching as ever been a game of football as has ever been played. Clean, honest-to-God football. Probably not much offensive, but defensive playing is really what wins any kind of an old game. And the kind the true fans like to pay to see. Everybody was completely satisfied.

"Hold 'em, Auburn."

When Tech was cawing on the five, three and one-yard lines of Auburn in the last of the third quarter, one sturdy Auburn fan leaped up and chanted:

"Hold 'em, Auburn; hold 'em, boys!"

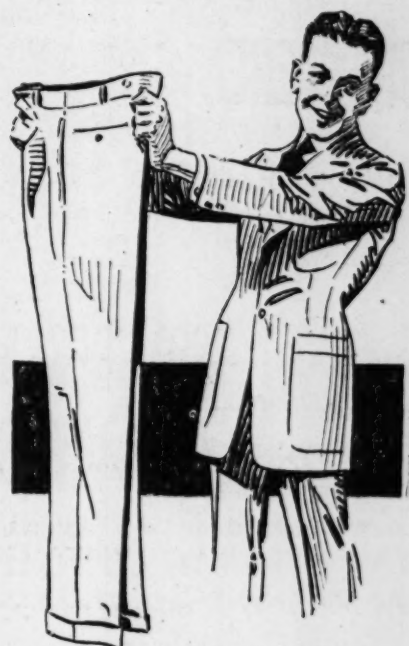

A minute or so later, a Tech fan up and yells:

"Yeah, hold 'em, Auburn; they held 'em—for the photographers."

And now it is all over and the Tech boys can have Atlanta for the asking. And if Wycoff doesn't make the all-American, the writer hopes to get all his future football over the radio.

The crowd came early and at half-past one the stands were filled. With the exception of seats in the temporary north stand, it was a sell-out day before the game. Speculators were at the gates, offering a few choice seats for sale at silk-stocking prices, but everybody seemed to be provided with pasteboard.

And, as previously stated, Georgia Tech being unquestionably the football team of the south, we can pick up our cross-word puzzles and wonder who is going to pitch the first game for the Crackers next spring. Everybody is happy.

Wayne B. Wheeler Protests Prohibition Unit's Transfer

Proposal To Put It Under Department of Justice Draws Hot Fire From Dry Leaders.

Washington, November 27.—Dries have rushed forward with emphatic protests against the proposal to transfer the prohibition enforcement unit to the department of justice, as recommended by a committee of United States circuit judges in session here. This recommendation, conveyed immediately by Chief Justice Taft to Attorney General Stone, with the suggestion that it be embodied in his annual report, stirred dries deeply and reopened an old fight which caused President Harding considerable trouble.

"We would be swamped in bootleg liquor," said Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon league, in a statement protesting against the proposed transfer. He said that the plan would leave the supply of bootleg liquor to the revenue collectors, who are more interested in increasing their internal revenue collections than in suppressing illicit liquor.

Not Given Hearing?
He complained that the dry forces were not heard by the judges before their recommendation was made. The permissive features of the law controlling industrial and non-beverage liquor cannot be appropriately transferred to the justice department.

The only check the public has on such officials is to have the evidence collected by officers not under the immediate control of the prosecutor. This is the system used in every department of the government since its inception. Why should prohibition be singled out as the exception? The present system needs to be remedied, but the proposed plan would make it worse, not better.

Wheeler said, "The suggested plan would leave the supply for bootleg liquor with the revenue collectors, who seem more interested in collecting revenue than in preventing the diversion of liquor to beverage use. We would have a system resulting in a buck-passing contest. It would be confusion worse confounded."

"The weakness of the present system is at this point. The Crampton bill, adopted by the house by a majority of more than three to one, proposes to remedy this. The judges plan would aggravate it. We would be swamped in bootleg liquor."

Should Not Gather Evidence.
The justice department is not primarily an evidence-gathering department. It takes the evidence collected by the various departments of government and determines which cases should be prosecuted. To put the responsibility of all of this work in the hands of the district attorneys would jeopardize enforcement in many sections where these officers are now failing. They could cover their failures more completely under the proposed plan.

More than 100 Atlantans were inducted into the order of the Maccabees Thursday night at a ceremonial at the home of the state branch to honor Supreme Commander A. W. Frye, who is the guest of Atlanta Maccabees. The visiting head of the order highly complimented the degree team and deploring it one of the best expositions he had ever witnessed.

The ceremonial was the high point of an elaborate program arranged to honor the commander on his initial visit to Georgia. A number of prominent Atlantans made brief addresses during the evening, all leading up to principal addresses which were made by Commander Frye, Attorney General George A. Naper, and Mayor Walter A. Sims.

State Commander R. E. Leatherman welcomed the supreme official on behalf of Georgia members of the order, lauding the success of the order during the period that Commander Frye has been at the helm and briefly sketching the history of the expansion and progress of Maccabees during the more than 50 years of its existence.

Musical features interspersed the business of the program. The Maccabean band, directed by Professor Altheimer, a flag ceremony by the Georgia degree team, directed by Colonel Frank E. Herndon, and selections by E. B. Lester, vocal selections by Master Gran Mueller, and impersonations and vocal numbers by Sidney Rowe, widely known comedian and singer, featured the entertainment numbers.

Short addresses were made by Colonel Frank E. Herndon, of Dalton; Dr. J. A. Yeast, of East Point; Frank O. Crox, southeastern supervisor of Birmingham; R. H. Sapp, of Dalton; and D. G. Glavin, former state commander and director general of traffic plans for the motorcade to the national convention in Washington in 1925, and Max Jacobs, past state commander, of Palestine Tent, and others.

Commander Frye's address included a brief history of the order, dating from its founding more than half a century ago, and referring to the outstanding features of the long history of the order.

Praised Georgians.
The visitor paid tribute to leaders in various states and in Canadian provinces who are heading gigantic expansion programs, and praised Commander Leatherman and Georgia deputies for the growth that had marked the order's service in this state, particularly during the past few months.

He also praised the efforts of state officials to cement a fraternal spirit between Maccabees and other similar organizations; of the plans in this state to send a large delegation to the national convention; of the marked growth of Caravan clubs and general high spirit in circles of the order in Georgia and adjoining states.

Commander Frye will leave the city at noon today for Macon, where he will be guest of Macon Maccabees at a banquet and special initiation ceremony. On Saturday and part of Sunday he will visit other Georgia tents on an informal inspection tour, leaving the state Sunday night for a short visit to tents in adjoining states before returning to national headquarters in Detroit.

MAON MACCABEES TO RECEIVE COMMANDER.
Macon, Ga., November 27.—(Special.)—Elaborate preparations are under way here for the big Maccabean ceremonial Friday night, at which Supreme Commander A. W. Frye will be honor guest. A large class of members will be initiated as the final feature of a program which includes a variety of entertainment, brief addresses by leading Maconites, the principal address by Commander Frye, and a banquet.

The supreme commander arrived in Georgia Wednesday, being the guest Wednesday and Thursday of Atlanta Maccabees. His visit here is part of a schedule which includes visits to two score Georgia cities on an informal inspection trip. The distinguished visitor will leave this state Sunday for a short tour of other southern Maccabean tents before returning to his home in Detroit.

A delegation of local Maccabees attended the Atlanta banquet and ceremonial Thursday night in honor of the supreme head of the order, Deputy State Commander George Morison, who is returning to the state to conduct the trip here Friday afternoon of Commander Frye.

BOY PRISONERS ELUDE GUARDS; JUMP FROM TRAIN
Baltimore, Md., November 27.—Two boys, 14 and 15 years old, respectively, federal prisoners en route under guard from Muskogee, Okla., to the District of Columbia house of correction, escaped tonight by jumping from a window of the compartment when the train on which they were being transported, stopped at Union station here.

The boys, Robert Sanders, 14, and Price Skipworth, 15, had been sentenced to five years' imprisonment each on separate charges of automobile theft.

A third prisoner, Virgil Henderson, 21, who had been sentenced to serve five years in the reformatory at Chesapeake for a postoffice robbery, refused to join the others in their flight.

Cuban Railway Workers Threaten Strike on Friday
Havana, Cuba, November 27.—Union workers on the Northern Railway of Cuba announced today they will strike tomorrow unless differences between the company and dock workers at Puerto Tarifa over working conditions are settled. It was learned today at the offices of the company.

This strike was said by the company to have no direct connection with the sugar mill strike, but it was learned officially that practically all union freight train employees on the Santiago division of the Cuba railroad have been discharged for refusing to handle freight for the sugar mills, whose men are striking for union recognition.

'RADIO-COMPASS' TEST PROVES SUCCESSFUL

Dayton, Ohio, November 27.—McCook field officials today reported success of a "radio-compass" test on an airway flight completed by Lieutenant George W. Goddard between this city and Moundville, W. Va.

While a constant stream of signals flowed between radio towers at the two places, Lieutenant Goddard, flying in a haze and without attempting to guide by landmarks, was kept on a virtual beam line route by a special receiving apparatus that told him by signals when he was sliding off his course.

When he was on the straight course, he heard only dashes in the signals between the towers. When he veered to the left, he was told so by hearing a dash and then a dot, repeated at intervals of ten seconds. A dot and a dash, or reverse signal, warned him he was swerving too far to the right.

JUSSERAND WILL STAY UNTIL AFTER NEW YEAR

Paris, November 27.—Ambassador Jusserand will remain in Washington until after January 1, so that as dean of the diplomatic corps he can see the New Year congratulations to President Coolidge. He intends sailing home January 6, the foreign office is informed.

Emile Daeschner, the new ambassador to Washington, will sail for America January 17, or after the returning ambassador has returned to France, where the new diplomatic representative will have an opportunity to confer with his predecessor before leaving to take up the duties of his post.

Count de Sartiges, the new counselor of the embassy at Washington, will sail December 28 and will act as charge d'affaires in the interval between the departure of M. Jusserand and the arrival of his successor.

$50,000 FIRE SWEEPS TOWN IN TENNESSEE

McMinnville, Tenn., November 27.—Damage estimated at more than $50,000 was caused here early this morning by a fire of undetermined origin, which destroyed Frank H. Barry's hardware store and the Walling block of buildings and seriously damaged the Magness block, the general merchandise store of A. P. Warren and A. S. Bartholomew's restaurant.

INTERNE IS KILLED AS AUTO OVERURNS

New Orleans, La., November 27.—Harold Battalora, 22 years old, an interne at Charity hospital, was killed today when his automobile overturned on the New Orleans-Baton Rouge highway while he and a party of companions were on their way to Baton Rouge to witness the Tulane-L. S. U. football game. Several of the other occupants were slightly injured.

GERMAN AVIATOR PLANS DIRIGIBLE FLIGHT TO POLE

Christiania, November 26.—In a lecture before the Norwegian Geographical society tonight, Commander Bruns, a German aviator, dwelt on a project for a flight to the north pole in a dirigible balloon. Dr. Fridtjof Nansen is said to have agreed to go with him on the flight.

Brun declared he proposed to use an airship which would be larger than any now in existence and which would be capable of flying for 100 hours at 75 miles an hour. He suggested that the expedition should be a scientific and not a sporting event. It was his purpose to establish a base on the Murman coast of the Arctic ocean in northwest Russia, fly across Franz Josef land and the north pole to Alaska and return by way of Nicholas II land in the Arctic off the northern coast of Siberia.

Spring, according to Bruns, would be the best time to start on the trip. The cost of the expedition would be very great and he hoped that all nations would contribute to it.

Brokers' Messengers Skip With Large Amount of Bonds

New York, November 26.—Two brokers' messengers and $60,000 worth of negotiable bonds were being sought by the police tonight.

Rhoades & Co. reported that Hugh J. Gillis, an 18-year-old messenger, who had been in their employ only two days, had not been seen by them since noon yesterday when he left the firm's offices with $40,000 worth of bonds for delivery to various other brokerage houses. Inquiry of the consignees revealed that the bonds had never been delivered.

The second loss was reported by Jacquelin & de Coppel, who said that $20,000 in bonds given for delivery to Peter Smith, a messenger in their employ for seven years, had disappeared. Smith said he had given the bonds to another messenger whom he had met on the street as he started his rounds. The police credited his story saying the procedure was a common one among brokers' messengers.

Atlantans Find Plenty of Cause To Be Thankful

BY LOY WARWICK, JR.
Thanksgiving day was thoroughly and appropriately celebrated in Atlanta Thursday.
Some ate too much turkey. Others didn't get any at all. A few worshipped freely, but unwisely, at the shrine of Bacchus. Others were dry enough to please Volstead himself. Those who could buy tickets saw Tech beat Auburn. A lot of people slept all day. Only the unfortunates worked. It was a total holiday, as you found out if you tried to get in a show with a complimentary pass.
But it was a splendid day. Tech beat Auburn and it didn't rain a drop. The family gathered around the board, and giggled and frowned while the old man tried vainly to carve the turkey and at the same time retain his poise. There was almost enough white meat for everybody. The junior members of the household crawled away from the table on hands and knees—knocked out, but happily gorged.
And then after dinner—turkey dinner—it was fine to sit in front of the fire and to realize that there was no work to be done until the morning.
In the early hours of Thursday morning—just a short while after the merry-makers of Wednesday night had gone to bed—a sweeter spirit of Thanksgiving was felt. People—good people—filled quietly into church. Their forefathers might not have come over on the Mayflower, but they are the ones who carry out the idea of the day as the Pilgrims intended it.
With Thanksgiving a memory, Atlantans have Christmas to look forward to.

NOVELIST HURLS TWO NEW CHARGES AT KING ALFONZO

Paris, November 27.—Vincent Blasco Ibañez from his Paris headquarters today hurled two new charges against King Alfonso, of Spain.
The first was that he was conspiring to supplant all the democratically inclined officers of the home forces of infantry with reserve and gendarmes officers loyal to him, in order to be able to rely upon the infantry for a coup d'état, making the monarchy absolute.

The second was that, being short of funds, his majesty recently dumped on the Bourse two million pesetas worth of shares of the Madrid Subway company, causing a considerable flurry and making the other stockholders lose heavily.
Ibañez explained that the king feels he can rely on the cavalry and artillery officers, because virtually all of them belong to or are connected with the nobility, whereas the infantry officers are commissioned officers.

FORMER SENATOR LEAVES ESTATE OF NEAR $1,000,000

Los Angeles, Cal., November 28.—An estate aggregating $1,000,000 in cash, securities and real estate was left by the late Cornelius C. Weiman, United States senator of civil war days and friend of Abraham Lincoln, it was revealed when his will was filed for probate today. Cole died November 3, aged 102 years.

Rita Weiman, Novelist, Will Be Married To Advertising Man

New York, November 28.—Rita Weiman, novelist and playwright, will be married at her home tomorrow to Maurice E. Marks, an advertising man, by Supreme Court Justice Charles L. Guy. The ceremony will be performed just a month after a marriage appeared with an article by Miss Weiman entitled "I Am Still Single Because."
Miss Weiman acknowledged tonight that even six months ago when she wrote the article, she was thinking of Mr. Marks as a possible "lifetime playmate." The editor knowing this, however, placed her under agreement not to marry until the article had appeared.

Portuguese To Continue Age-Long Alliance With Great Britain

Lisbon, Portugal, November 28.—The new Portuguese government in its declarations of policy says it is its intention to preserve Portugal's age-long alliance with Great Britain. It makes a new agreement with Brazil and to end as quickly as possible the modus vivendi with France.
It adds that a general plan for settlement of the country's colonial problems will be drafted immediately and that steps will be taken to develop the country's waterpower. The nation's fuel resources will be utilized as far as possible to lighten the burden of exchange.

OPIMUM CONFERENCE MEETS AGAIN TODAY

Geneva, November 27.—(By the Associated Press.)—Public interest in Geneva centered tonight on the plenary meeting of the international opium conference, which is fixed for tomorrow afternoon. At this session, Stephen G. Porter, the American delegate, is expected to fight out on the floor the question of his reservations touching the American proposals.
Mr. Porter today asked the convening of a plenary meeting to discuss two points in the American program which were objected to as being outside the agenda of the conference. The objection was made by the delegate from India when the agenda was being considered by the business committee. One point refers to the total prohibition of the manufacture and distribution of heroin. The other concerns chiefly the production of opium, and India has opposed it because she deems it would have the effect of stopping the growth of opium in India, which is eaten by the natives.

Are You Discouraged, Blue? This Advice Is of Vital Importance to You

Columbia, S. C.—"I was suffering with a breakdown in health, and became discouraged. I suffered with bearing pains and pains down through my limbs; my appetite was poor and I became frail and weak. Nothing I took seemed to do me any good. One day my husband got one of Dr. Pierce's pamphlets and we soon decided to try the 'Favorite Prescription.' My husband bought a half dozen bottles to start with. I began to improve at once and before these bottles were gone I was perfectly well and have been well ever since."—Mrs. Hattie Wessinger, 200 Sumner St., New York.
Your health is the most valuable asset you have—do not delay but obtain this "Prescription" now.

FIRE DESTROYS BARN OF TUGALO FARMER

Tugalo, Ga., November 27.—(Special)—Paul Johns, a prominent farmer of Tugalo valley, was a heavy loser by fire Tuesday when his barn, which contained 1,000 bushels of corn, several head of stock, many hogs, hay and farming implements was totally destroyed. There was no insurance.

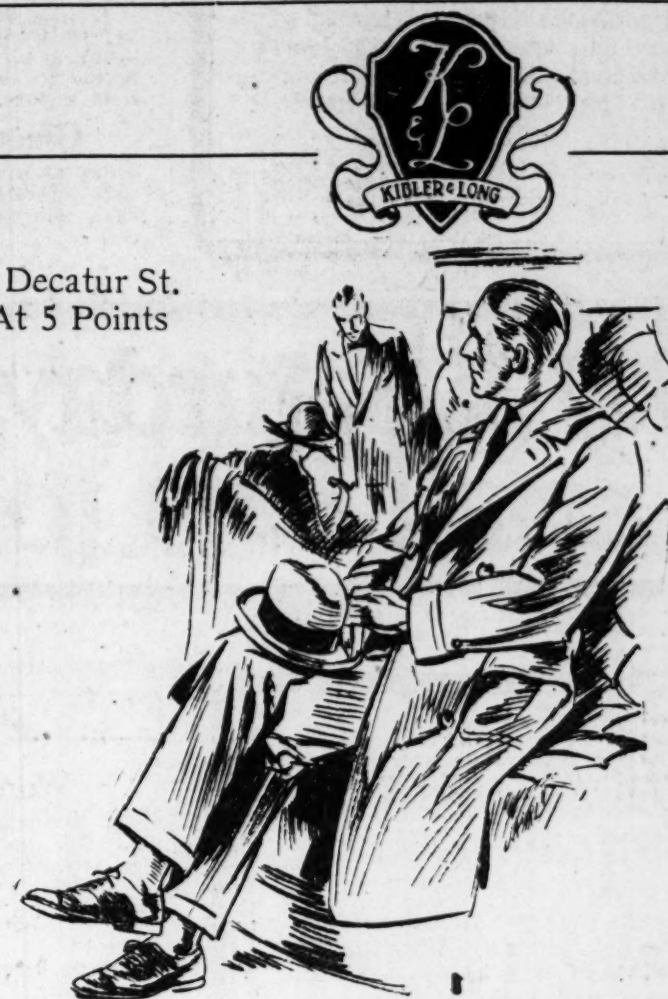

The fire is thought to have been of incendiary origin. $750,000 TO BE SPENT BY MOBILE RAILROAD

Mobile, Ala., November 27.—An expenditure of $750,000 for improvements to the Gulf, Mobile and Northern railroad in and around Mobile was announced today.
One of the big improvements proposed is the building of what is known as the "Chickasaw spur" to connect with the river-front docks.
The company has purchased a 140 acre tract between Crichton and Spring Hill, where a big yard will be built. The company since coming out of the receivership has spent a total of $7,000,000 in improvements, according to President Tigrett.

New York, November 27.—The Northwestern Bell Telephone company announced today that it had called its $20,000,000 issue of first mortgage 7 per cent bonds for redemption on February 1, 1925, at a price of 107 1-2. The loan, which was floated in 1921 when investment market conditions demanded a high interest rate, did not mature until 1941.

Hollomon Speaks to Carroll Farmers At Big Thanksgiving Celebration

Farm Bureau Members in State's Leading Cotton County Meet at A. and M. College.

Carrollton, Ga., November 27.—(Special).—James A. Hollomon, associate editor of The Constitution, spoke to a crowded auditorium at the fourth district A. & M. college here at 11 o'clock today. The occasion was a joint meeting of the members of the Carroll county farm board and their families and the college student body, a Thanksgiving barbecue in the college grounds following Mr. Hollomon's speech. He was introduced by President I. S. Ingram, of the college, and his address followed devotional exercises conducted by Rev. Dr. J. J. Wilford, pastor of the Tabernacle Baptist church. Following the barbecue an address was made by A. K. Sneed, president of the Citizens' bank and director of the Georgia Cotton Growers' association, this county constituting an association district, being the banner cotton-producing county in the state.

Mr. Hollomon spoke on farm organization and community democracy, weaving the same around the spirit of Thanksgiving.

Hollomon's Address. The full text of Mr. Hollomon's address follows:

Thanksgiving day is distinctly an American institution, and we are proud of it. We as American citizens are, if anything, more sincerely wedded to it than any other people in the world.

of Alabama; to the nation its system of good roads, a monument to Senator Bankhead, of Alabama; to ocean transportation its first steamship; to agriculture its first harvester; to education its first state university; to the nation's armies the flower of its manhood without stint or compunction; to the fields of service its Florence Nightingales from every home; and to all the world the democracy that crumbles the peaks of autocracy and lifts the valleys of oppression to a common level—the democracy for which three million boys made the supreme sacrifice.

It was the south that first cradled the democracy for which the allied armies of the world struggled for four years against the Prussianism of Germany.

In every great and outstanding accomplishment in the history of this united country—and thank God today for a flag that knows no sections—the south has been foremost, even to its battle of the 60's, which was not in defense of slavery, but in defense of the American constitution and its guarantee of sovereignty to states. Thank God that we are southerners!

As Free Agents. The most inspiring thought that comes to us in our darkest hours is that we live as free agents; that we live in a great democracy of equal opportunities, that also carry their equal responsibilities; that every American citizen has the protection of a government of and by and for the people—that our flag is the flag of the rich and the poor, the flag of the north and the south and the west alike.

It was in the fullness of this spirit that the American institution of Thanksgiving was born. President Washington felt the hand of Providence in the victories that had come to American arms in the great struggle for liberty. The American colonies had been planted in a western wilderness, 3,000 miles across water from the mother land, amid the hardships and privations of pioneering and amid the perils of hostile savages, in a spirit of revolt against the tyrannies of autocracy. And when the voice of oppression had galloped the blood the bugle call to arms echoed from Boston bay to Jamestown and to the Altamaha, and patriots went to war for human rights and God smiled His blessings upon them. Their hardships in fighting a great and an oppressing power can not be described; but with fortitude and courage they kept steadily and bravely pressing for liberty, and the sunlight of freedom broke over the red fields of battle and made them white with the peace of an ever-enduring democracy.

My friends, the American institution of Thanksgiving is dedicated to the spirit of the American patriots, and it is sanctified by the blood of the fathers who gave to the western world a free and an independent government of the people. First of all, we should give thanks today for America, the land of the free.

We people of the south should be particularly thankful that we are of the south—of this great land of the Cavalier where the Anglo-Saxon blood is not contaminated by the bloods of nationalities foreign to our ideals of government and to our ideals of Christian civilization. Not only should we be thankful that we are of the south, but we should love the south, and be jealous of a heritage that is as priceless as it is sacred. Let us never forget what the south has meant to this great nation's life, from the hour that Patrick Henry kindled the fires of independence to this good hour. We will go even further back—to the landing of the Cavaliers in Tidewater Virginia long before the story of the Mayflower was written, for the very chart of the Plymouth harbor was made by Captain John Smith, under the shades of the southern oaks, and the Puritan Pilgrims were guided safely into their New England moorings by the skill of a southern engineer.

And from the red blood of these rollicking Cavaliers that percolated from the surf-strewn coast into the hills, the south is invincible today through the purity of its Caucasian strain; and the human hope of America rests today—and I measure my words—in the pure-blooded Anglo-Saxon states of the south. My friends, it was the south whose Jefferson wrote the Declaration of Independence; whose Washington commanded the continental armies; whose Madison wrote the constitution—the greatest contribution to statecraft ever penned in any language; whose Marshall interpreted the organic laws; whose Andrew Jackson fought the battle of the union at New Orleans in 1815 when New England was trying to secede; whose Winfield Scott planted Old Glory on the walls of Mexico; whose Benton carried the flag of commerce across the western plains and tapped the Pacific at the outlet to the Orient; whose Monroe wrote the great doctrine of amity between the nations of the western hemisphere; whose Lee led the most intrepid army known in the history of warfare; whose Schley won the war with Spain by sea strategy at Santiago; and whose Alvin York, the mountain boy from across the hills in eastern Tennessee, won the greatest distinction for individual heroism in the greatest war of the world.

The South's Contribution. It was the south that gave to the nation her Lincoln and to the world her Wilson; that gave to the nation Theodore O'Hara's immortal elegy, "The Bivouac of the Dead," and Father Ryan's "Conquered Banner," that gave to the world the Panama canal, the monument to John T. Morgan, notorious Wall street panic of 1893, due to a collapse of speculations which created widespread suspicion of our banking systems. We did not have the protecting arm of a federal reserve system then, nor the auxiliary strength of war time corporation. We had no federal land banks, or intermediate farm banks. All of this, however, would not have reacted so disastrously on the farmer had not the world production of farm products been abnormally large from 1892 to 1906. Production ran far ahead of possible consumption at the cost of production price. The result caused an abandonment of farms, and idle farm hands flocked to towns and cities; and idleness breeds mischief. Politicians tried to bring the remedy through inflation of currency by the free coinage of silver. You remember the 16-1-10 bugaboo. Radicalism fostered by distress and abetted by political demagogues was a menace in those days just as it has been in the past year. But the common sense of the people prevailed, and radicalism down. It realized the truth that the solution to such conditions is economic and not political.

It was the Georgia farmer who pulled down from its masthead by the better thought of the American people. These so dispiritingly on the farmer had not the world production of farm products been abnormally large from 1892 to 1906. Production ran far ahead of possible consumption at the cost of production price. The result caused an abandonment of farms, and idle farm hands flocked to towns and cities; and idleness breeds mischief. Politicians tried to bring the remedy through inflation of currency by the free coinage of silver. You remember the 16-1-10 bugaboo. Radicalism fostered by distress and abetted by political demagogues was a menace in those days just as it has been in the past year. But the common sense of the people prevailed, and radicalism down. It realized the truth that the solution to such conditions is economic and not political.

Georgia Stands Unique. In the wisdom of divine leadership he outlawed trafficking in alcoholic liquors and negro slaves at the very inception of the colony, and in this Georgia stands unique as the leader of reform thought in the western world.

Slow to anger, the Herculean in patriotic duty, Georgia was the last colony to break the tie with its motherland, but among the foremost in loyalty and patriotism along the battle line for the cause of liberty. She was slow to secede from the union in 1861, with intellectual giants of the day pitted against each other in cross-currents of thought; with the brilliant Tombs literally driving Georgians into the fire upon Fort Sumter, and with the great John Wesley, the father of Methodism, founders of creedal thought in this country.

Georgia gave to the world the anesthetic, the sewing machine, the cotton gin, steam navigation; to woman her first college diploma; to America; and to service some of the nation's ablest and most useful men and women.

Let us thank God today that we are Georgians, and that the sacred heritage of our fathers is not only a democracy of people, but a democracy of race. It is great to be an American; great to be a Georgian. My friends, let us love our country and our state. Let us love Georgia as the child loves the parent, and defend her proud name, and speak well of her at all times. Let us never malign our state. If there are evils—and there are many—let us correct them in an orderly manner by constituted authority, and by appeal to the ballot box, which is not only the chief fundamental of popular government, but the duty of loyal citizenship.

Let us consider briefly some of the economic problems. We are thankful for the growing spirit of cooperation between the farmer and the business man, and of the light of a new day in our agricultural life. Things are not as bad as they seem, even for the farmer—in the nation as a whole and in Georgia. Due partly to a federal banking policy of deflation, but largely to the closing of foreign markets, the farmers were brought to their knees three and four years ago, and the depression that has followed has been such as to try men's souls. But that is passing. It was peculiarly severe in the south because of the boll weevil infestation that had prevailed it by a year or two, and the cotton farmer was reduced to a condition that bordered upon despair.

Lessons to Farmers. It sometimes takes a fire in a city to start it on a road to progress, and in some ways even the deflation and the boll weevil have been disguised blessings. The former has taught the farmer to organize and to take a keener interest in fixing his government's policies so that it shall give to him, in its laws and relations, the best consideration that so great an element in the nation's economic life deserves and must have in order to balance properly the economic activities of the country for the benefit of all.

The boll weevil has forced emancipation from smug complacency, and taught us to grow our food and feed crops at home and to balance our agriculture that our lands shall not remain idle, and all our wastes shall be properly utilized.

This system of balanced agriculture has taught us cooperation in marketing—in grading, packing, distributing—and for these things we thank God. Not all of our people have learned these lessons, and it devolves upon us who have learned them to teach it to our neighbors. Sometimes the process of teaching may be difficult. The banker sometimes may be forced to teach it, too, by restricted credits, but it is a lesson that must be learned by all, for in this great country of equal opportunities and responsibilities the fittest survive the longest and prosper the most.

The situation in the country is not as bad as it has been pictured. We recall the agricultural history of the 90's. We remember Coxey's army and its march, ragged and hungry, across the continent to storm the nation's capital in a plea for work and bread. Fine mules sold for $25 a head; cows for $15 a head. In the grain belt in 1896 corn dropped to 11 cents a bushel. Today it is worth $1.12 a bushel. We remember, or we have heard, how cotton then dropped to 5 cents a pound. Today it is selling for 24.50 average. The distress in this country then was widespread. The dinner pails were empty. The dollar could buy more than it can today, but it was one hundred times harder to scrimp of. Indeed there was no money in circulation. The stores traded and bartered. The mills paid off in commissary checks.

Causes of Trouble. The trouble in those days may be traced to many sources, including the notorious Wall street panic of 1893, due to a collapse of speculations which created widespread suspicion of our banking systems. We did not have the protecting arm of a federal reserve system then, nor the auxiliary strength of war time corporation. We had no federal land banks, or intermediate farm banks. All of this, however, would not have reacted so disastrously on the farmer had not the world production of farm products been abnormally large from 1892 to 1906. Production ran far ahead of possible consumption at the cost of production price. The result caused an abandonment of farms, and idle farm hands flocked to towns and cities; and idleness breeds mischief. Politicians tried to bring the remedy through inflation of currency by the free coinage of silver. You remember the 16-1-10 bugaboo. Radicalism fostered by distress and abetted by political demagogues was a menace in those days just as it has been in the past year. But the common sense of the people prevailed, and radicalism down. It realized the truth that the solution to such conditions is economic and not political.

It was the Georgia farmer who pulled down from its masthead by the better thought of the American people. These so dispiritingly on the farmer had not the world production of farm products been abnormally large from 1892 to 1906. Production ran far ahead of possible consumption at the cost of production price. The result caused an abandonment of farms, and idle farm hands flocked to towns and cities; and idleness breeds mischief. Politicians tried to bring the remedy through inflation of currency by the free coinage of silver. You remember the 16-1-10 bugaboo. Radicalism fostered by distress and abetted by political demagogues was a menace in those days just as it has been in the past year. But the common sense of the people prevailed, and radicalism down. It realized the truth that the solution to such conditions is economic and not political.

Georgia Stands Unique. In the wisdom of divine leadership he outlawed trafficking in alcoholic liquors and negro slaves at the very inception of the colony, and in this Georgia stands unique as the leader of reform thought in the western world.

Slow to anger, the Herculean in patriotic duty, Georgia was the last colony to break the tie with its motherland, but among the foremost in loyalty and patriotism along the battle line for the cause of liberty. She was slow to secede from the union in 1861, with intellectual giants of the day pitted against each other in cross-currents of thought; with the brilliant Tombs literally driving Georgians into the fire upon Fort Sumter, and with the great John Wesley, the father of Methodism, founders of creedal thought in this country.

Georgia gave to the world the anesthetic, the sewing machine, the cotton gin, steam navigation; to woman her first college diploma; to America; and to service some of the nation's ablest and most useful men and women.

Let us thank God today that we are Georgians, and that the sacred heritage of our fathers is not only a democracy of people, but a democracy of race. It is great to be an American; great to be a Georgian. My friends, let us love our country and our state. Let us love Georgia as the child loves the parent, and defend her proud name, and speak well of her at all times. Let us never malign our state. If there are evils—and there are many—let us correct them in an orderly manner by constituted authority, and by appeal to the ballot box, which is not only the chief fundamental of popular government, but the duty of loyal citizenship.

BARRETT AND LEACH BOUGHT BY KAMPER

The large grocery store of Barrett & Leach at 2557 Peachtree road has been purchased by the C. J. Kamper Grocery company, and beginning Monday morning will be operated under ownership and direction of the Kamper company, according to announcements made Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. J. W. Leach, one of the owners of the former house, and one of its most active directors, had been advised to take an extended vacation for her health. Rather than throw the business upon the market, it was stated, the owners of the store approached Francis E. Kamper, head of the Kamper company, and proposed a sale.

Mr. Kamper said that his company was largely influenced in making the purchase by the fact that the Barrett & Leach company carries the highest grade of food products on the market.

Attorney Alex W. Smith, Sr., will speak on "The Story of the Constitution" at a meeting of the City club at noon today at the Piedmont hotel. The address is in line with a suggestion by the American Bar association that the constitution should be explained at every opportunity.

Similar addresses are being delivered throughout the United States during Thanksgiving week, the period especially designated by the bar association as "Explanation week."

Its Paul Whitman band, its splendid company of principals, and its really remarkable dancing chorus, found instant favor with local theatergoers, and it is doubtful if any musical comedy in recent years has made as profound an impression as has "Little Jessie James." There will be a matinee on Saturday, with positively the last performance Saturday night.

WHITE BOY IS SHOT,
POLICE SEEK NEGRO

A thoughtless remark dropped by one of two white boys to two passing negro youths resulted in an altercation Thursday night during which one of the negroes drew a revolver and opened fire, hitting one of the boys. The negroes fled.

The boy who was shot is Harry Gray, 16, of 185 Bass street. With a companion, Buster Lane, 12, living at the same address, Gray accosted the negroes with a foolish remark. It is said. The pair of negroes resented the remark and an argument ensued, which culminated when one of the negroes pulled a gun and shot Gray. Call Officers Cheving and Duncan and Captain Holcomb were assigned to the case. Young Gray was removed to Grady hospital, where his wounds were taken care of.

NO PROGRESS IS MADE IN SHEATSLEY MURDER

Columbus, Ohio, November 27.—Nothing tending to solve the veil of mystery which has hung over the parsonage of Christ Evangelical Lutheran church in the fashionable Bexley district, since the practically cremated body of Mrs. Addie Sheatsley, was found in the furnace 11 days ago, developed today.

The work of County Prosecutor John R. King and his aides was at a standstill. They rested after a period of almost constant work since the body was found by the husband, the Rev. C. V. Sheatsley.

Tonight, Mr. King said he had no plans for the remainder of the week. Further action, he said, will depend on the report of scientific experts.

Hundreds of curious persons today thronged through the street in front of the parsonage to which the Rev. Mr. Sheatsley and his four children returned from Paris, Ohio, where funeral services were held for Mrs. Sheatsley a week ago.

Premises of the parsonage were guarded today by stalwart members of the football squad of Capital university, where the minister is a lecturer on religious subjects. The family today remained in seclusion.

"BOCHES COMING,"
CRIES PRISONER
IN POLICE CELL

Crying that "The Boches Are Coming" at the top of his voice on a downtown street and later telling authorities who took him into custody that he feared he was "going to be lined up against a stone wall and shot," a demented man is being held by the police for examination.

A letter found in the man's pocket Thursday night was addressed to H. H. Rainford, of 520 Washington street, but the police could not ascertain if the prisoner's name was Rainford.

The man repeatedly cried out in fear and said he had never been in Atlanta in his life.

"I'm in France," he repeated, "and the Germans are going to get me." Authorities believe the man a gas victim.

WHO KILLED ONE AND INJURED TWO

Plainfield, N. J., November 27.—Physician tonight pronounced insane Mary Kuwomak, who early today attacked a family of three with an ax while they slept, killing one, and probably fatally injuring another. George H. Davey, 50, was killed, his head having been nearly severed. His invalid wife, sleeping in another room, was so critically cut on the face and throat that hospital authorities said she might not survive. A daughter, Winnifred, 14, attempted to escape to the street and was slashed across the cheek. The woman was a servant in the Davey home.

"The Lord told me to do it," the servant told the police. She is 32 years old and came from Poland 14 years ago. Neighbors said she had attended church regularly and never had given indication of an unbalanced mind.

Atlantans Busy
Over Cross-Word
Puzzle Building

Cross-word puzzle making was the favorite indoor sport in Atlanta on Thanksgiving afternoon, when the turkey had gone the way of all fowl flesh.

Announcement in Thursday morning's paper that The Constitution was to conduct a contest for cross-word puzzle construction, following the tremendous interest which has been aroused in the art of cross-word solution, seems to have struck a most popular chord. One out of every three people you met Thursday told you he was trying his hand at building the tantalizing puzzles, and it is probable a large majority of the puzzles first submitted to the cross-word puzzle editor will be filled with such words as "cranberries," "turkey" and "Thanksgiving."

Rules Are Simple.

Rules of the contest are simple. Just construct a cross-word puzzle similar to those you have seen every day in The Constitution for weeks past. Send it in not later than December 14 and you may win the prize. If the judge thinks yours is the best prize you will receive will be a season pass to the Howard theater, good beginning January 1 next. In any event, you will probably see your puzzle in print, because all good enough to print will be published in The Constitution. Thus you will have the added fun, after you have constructed the puzzle, of watching your friends and neighbors try to work it out. Cross-word puzzle making is a complicated art. It has plenty of reimbursement for the labor involved, however, in the fun you get out of it.

So send in your puzzles as soon as you can. All puzzles mailed not later than midnight, December 14, will be eligible for the contest. The winner will be announced as soon thereafter as possible and in any event not later than January 1.

In making your puzzles, remember that their value will be judged on arrangement of your black square pattern, correct definitions of the words you use, perfection of your word interlock, and care displayed in selection of words.

Every word used must be contained in a recognized standard dictionary. They must be correctly spelled and the definitions you use in your numbered lists for horizontal and vertical words must be correct and true descriptions of the words needed to fill the spaces.

Don't Make Them Too Hard.

And, one thing more. The cross-word puzzle editor, while he is one of the most expert solvers of the puzzles to be found in Atlanta, has declared that he will not publish or give a prize to any puzzle he can't work out himself. So don't make them as hard that they are virtually impossible to solve.

The fewer abbreviations, chemical symbols, initials, and so forth, you use the better puzzle it will be.

Correct words, true definitions, perfect interlock, as few unkeyed letters as possible, are the secrets of successful puzzle making.

Get busy. Send in your puzzles, addressed to "The Cross-Word Puzzle Editor," care The Constitution, Atlanta, Ga., and then watch for them in the paper.

New Way to Stop
Night Coughing

Those who have suffered the tortures of sleeplessness due to continual coughing at night, and who as a result often feel utterly worn out and useless during the day, need no longer permit their systems to be weakened and their vitality sapped by this distressing ailment. For through a very simple treatment the trouble can be stopped almost at once, and people often get their full night's rest undisturbed after the very first trial.

Here is the method: Simply get a bottle of the prescription known as Dr. King's New Discovery from any drug store. Then to-night before retiring take one teaspoonful and hold it in your throat for 15 or 20 seconds before swallowing it. This prescription has a double action. It not only soothes and heals the soreness and irritation, but it quickly loosens and removes the phlegm, and congestion which is the real cause of the cough. So your throat is left wonderfully soothed and cleared of irritating matter, and you can sleep soundly and restfully, and the cough is usually gone in a very short time.

Dr. King's New Discovery is a remarkable remedy for coughs, chest colds, hoarseness, sore throat, spasmodic croup, bronchitis, laryngitis and bronchial asthma. At all good druggists. Ask for

SYNOPSIS.

Palmyra Tree, on board the yacht Rainbow, which is leaving the California coast for the north seas, is startled to see a sinister brown hand with a black lace mitt on it thrust through her port-hole window. Palmyra is loved by two men, John Thurston and Van Huren Butzer. She is not certain which man she loves. The girl determines to unearth the owner of that sinister hand, but tells no one her purpose. She discovers the stowaway—Ponape Burke—who confesses he is a smuggler of opium and opium. Burke permits her a glimpse of a savage brown man, Olive, in hiding with him.

INSTALLMENT V.

THE JUNGLE SAVAGE, OLIVE, COMES ON DECK.

Despite the heavy following seas that were piled up against the yacht's quarter, it was making good weather of it. But the water had again turned cold, repellent, dangerous, the gray surges, as they ran past, rising above the lee rail.

Mrs. Durley was insisting. Really and truly, a strange gentleman. Wasn't aboard when the Rainbow sailed.

They were, of course, unbelieving.

"Honest, ma'am," affirmed the stewardess. "A fat little man. In a loud suit and a brass-headed cane. He was standing there and he says: 'Sister, just take my card up to the—' begging your pardon, miss—' up to the striking blonde young lady. Her and me's close friends.'"

Palmyra looked up from the card, a Los Angeles cafe's, with the stowaway's name penciled across it.

"Why," she exclaimed in a tone compounded of mischief and misgiving, "it's Mr. Burke." Then, as they puzzled, trying to understand the fun. "Surely, you know Mr. Burke—Mr. Ponape Burke?"

At this moment she caught sight of the man himself, standing in the alley between the house and the rail.

"Mrs. Crawford," she introduced, "this is Mr. Burke, the well-known pirate. Will be pleased, yo ho ho, to demonstrate walking the plank. I'm sure if you could see him scuttle a ship, you'd feel we'd been greatly distinguished."

But here Captain Pedersen pounced upon them. "Why, why, what's this, Miss Tr—?" He broke off, evidently realizing he could not berate a guest. He whirled upon Mrs. Durley. "Stewardess, what does this mean? Yust what does this mean?"

Palmyra had decided she didn't quite like the sailing master. An old man, he impressed her as irritatingly fussy, as nursing some chronic sense of personal imposition. But Mrs. Crawford had said he was slowly recovering from a dangerous illness.

Burke was repeating his explanation of the night before. The girl was struck that again he made not the slightest effort to minimize his treachery. Apparently he saw nothing unethical in it. "But, ma'am,"

Then they came thrusting toward her in the dark.

he concluded, "though I'm stowed away here broke, I can yet pay. I know the islands—any group. Speak half a dozen lingoos. Few could give y' the same help."

Captain Pedersen "as still ruffled. "Oh, come now, captain," smiled Mrs. Crawford, "we really should have shipped a pirate when we went into commission. No vessel can consider itself fully well found without its own private buccaneer."

Palmyra's complicity had left the hostess no course other than to be thus amiable.

By daylight the pirate's face had lost its cherubic aspect. Still singularly undeveloped as to line and feature, there was now more visibly upon it a maturity of significance that could only have been stamped by dissipation, hardship and danger, or some more violent temperamental urge than, at first view, could have been suspected. A semi-circular scar on the right temple—as even innocent scars so often do—added an ugly touch. The whole countenance, in fact, so overemphasized the note of infantile incorrigibility as somehow to become thereby almost ingratiating in its air of depravity.

But if Burke's face had gained in significance his figure had not. The cane was so obviously external to the man's habit of life, the suit so aggressively ill-judged an effect, that the girl knew he must become a far more dignified being with the cap and cotton drilling of the tropical ship's master.

Moreover, he now verged on the pathetic, shaking with cold. As a seaman led him away forward, Palmyra recollected, with a stab of pity, that brown creature down below. If Burke, born to the north, was chattering with chill, what of this miserable being who now faced it for the first time in life?

The girl started, impulsively, to rise, then sank back again. She had seen the steward below, a short time past, overhauling blankets, a reserve supply for the men forward. If she could manage to get one or two of these coverings. Compassion urged the deed. But—she was afraid.

Presently, however, a well authenticated chin settled into place, and two lips grew arbitrary. She arose, excused herself, and marched down the companionway. Yes, the blankets were still there. She snatched two, secured her torch, and reached the bulkhead door, unchallenged.

As she swung the heavy door to, she was reprimanding herself for her timidity. What was there to fear? Why, nothing at all. And yet this senseless, this overpowering repulsion. It could be no wholesome normal emotion; rather some psychological quirk; the same sort of terror a child, growing older and knowing better, still has for the dark. She, Palmyra, was afraid of a brown native because he had an ugly face!

She switched on the torch, forced herself forward. Then, after a moment's hesitation: "Here—you! Are you cold? I have two blankets." she stood, waiting, listening. She could feel the darkness move with unseen menace. But the dead silence of that prisoned space gave back no sound of life. Perhaps this savage did not understand a word she'd spoken.

She might have swept the ray into all the corners, but she hesitated to repeat the vision of the night before. Rather, she held the blankets up invitingly and, in silence, turned the jet of light upon them.

For almost a minute she waited thus. Then, suddenly, without warning preliminary of sound, there appeared within the outer circle of light the ends of four great square fingers.

Almost, the girl sprang back, cried out in panic. A moment the fingers paused. Then they came thrusting toward her from the dark. For a flash it seemed that it must be herself they meant to seize. Then they closed upon the blankets, rested there an instant, withdrew their prize again into the night whence they had come.

But, brief as the interval, it had been enough. Here at last was the hand that had been sent through the port square, sinewy, brown; adorned even to the great-grandmother mits.

And she only now belatedly realized that these mits were not of silk, but of tattooer's ink.

When the girl came on deck next morning there the savage sat, cross-legged on the fore hatch, huddled under his blankets in the sun. Two seamen, their yarm-capped heads poking out from behind the mast, grinned and gaped. Captain Pedersen stood off and on in comic chagrin. Constance Crawford, asking eager questions, glowed in knitted scarlet between Vai and Thurston in yachtsman's blue; Van entirely at home; big John stamped with a something, as of mountain top and forest, that managed to make him a little foreign to this nautical setting. And in the center of the group was Ponape Burke, already turned showman.

As Palmyra and her parents appeared, he was explaining that the remote intelligence at his feet knew no word of any white man's language.

After a moment's shrinking inspection of the face, the girl perceived with relief that it fell short of the fantastical ferocity with which her recollection had endowed it. The knife, for one thing, was lacking. Perhaps that blade had had more than anything else to do with the startling effect.

MRS. BALAAM.
By Wallace M. Bayliss.
Since early days the wives of men have heard some stories that were pippins. One old bird, Whose name was Balaam, told, it seems to me, The most ingenious one in history. But, as with modern men, the thing fell flat: You could be almost sure 'twould end like that. Poor Mrs. Balaam, as this fellow's wife, Led what might be well termed a cussed life. For Balaam was the Curser for the Kind. He was to bring bad luck to anything Or anybody that the old kind feared, And so on Maud his old jacksass, long-eared, Our Brother Balaam traveled off to town.

To learn who needed next a cursing down. One day he came home whiter than a ghost; "What's up?" cried Mrs. Balaam, "Has your post Been taken from you? Tell me, has it, hey?" "Alas," said Balaam, "Worse than that! Today My jacksass turned around and spoke to me!" "Good grief! Is that all?" answered Mrs. B. "That's nothing new; just like all other sheiks. Each time you talk to me a jacksass speaks."

Some Prospect.
Jay: "Is your wife economical?" Fred: "Only when she shouldn't be. She just told me there was enough of the Thanksgiving turkey to warm over for the rest of the week." —Gertrude Marie Heller.

Now You Stop!

Willie: "Papa, our teacher told us to think of one thing that might have prevented the French revolution. What was it?" Papa: "Will you go to bed if I tell you?" Willie: "Sure." Papa: "The Fun Shop." —Billy R. Leahy.

Dear Wally: I have pretty eyes; With ease I hypnotize the guys.

The Fun Shop ought to buy my verse:

Where can I meet him? PRETTY NURSE.

Dear Nurse: He has a fishy eye; You'd go some if you got that guy! You'd better wait till he is sick; Perhaps then you can turn the trick.

"Louis, let's play prayer meeting. You be the meeting and I'll be the prayer."

A Good Idea.
"How long shall you be at Palm Beach?"

"Two months or more."

"I shall think about you every minute of the time," said the young man.

"Do so," responded the young lady. "It will keep you from running around with other girls."

and Mrs. Henry Boeckeler, of St. Louis. Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hecht dined together.

James Clary Neal was host in honor of Mrs. Virginia Fildes, of Miami, the guest of Mrs. George Young.

Dinner-Dance At East Lake.

The Thanksgiving dinner-dance at the East Lake Country club was one of especial beauty and interest to the members and their guests. Southern minx and large chrysanthemums, unshaded yellow tapers, embossed nix and dainty favors formed the decorations for the ball room and tables. The Peerless orchestra presented many new numbers. A number of parties were given:

Those entertaining were: J. B. Osborn, M. F. Hall, O. Chambers, T. Scott, Graham Williams, E. G. Wilkie, F. M. Nash, Jr., Paul Boniques, Tompkins Bussy and others.

POEMS THAT LIVE

ITALIA, IO TI SALUTO.

To come back from the sweet South,

Where I was born, bred, look to die;

Come back to do my day's work in its day.

Play out my play—

Amen, amen, say I.

To see no more the country half my own,

Nor hear the half-familiar speech,

Amen, I say; I turn to that bleak North.

Whence I came forth—

The South lies out of reach.

But when our swallows fly back to the South,

To the sweet South, to the sweet South,

The tears may come again into my eyes.

On the old wise,

And the sweet name to my mouth,

—Christina Georgina Rossetti.

Miss Futrelle Will Take Leading Role In 'Pandora'

Miss Virginia Futrelle, of New York, beautiful and talented young woman, will take the leading role in "Pandora," which will be presented at the Auditorium next week under the auspices of the Cœur de Lion commandery, Knights Templars. Her exquisite soprano voice has been heard before in musical circles in Atlanta, but her appearance upon this occasion will be of special significance in that she will have an opportunity to show her dramatic ability.

Miss Futrelle has recently finished her period of six months' study under William Thorne, of New York, who is known as the "maker of grand opera stars." She was prima donna at the Hippodrome for over a year, and since that time has given several successful concerts in different cities in America.

Miss Futrelle is a daughter of Mrs. Futrelle and the late Mr. Futrelle, from whom she has inherited much of her talent and charming personality. She possesses an attractive stage presence, which is decidedly professional and pleasing. She has sung difficult and most brilliant compositions arranged for a coloratura soprano, and she has been trained by the best teachers of voice in America.

The proceeds of this entertainment will be devoted toward the support of the Tallulah Falls school and the Macon Masonic Orphans' home. Sponsoring the production will be the Knights Templars, Atlanta Federation of Women's Clubs and the Order of Eastern Star.

SLAMS AND SALAAMS

By Louise Dooly

DOES anybody, we wonder, get all the thrills we do out of receiving letters?—“receiving” letters.

The contents may be a mere thought or a—“I take my pen in hand to tell you that we are all well. Hoping you are enjoying the same great blessing, I am,” etc.

Even with that the telegraph of affection established a connection. And that is what letters between friends are meant to do. They visualize one to the other in a special manner.

They have the quality of gifts: unexpected, they carry the pleasing element of surprise. Counted up, they bring the satisfaction of anticipation realized.

IF ALL our women friends who write us letters were brought to gether they would probably have a mighty po' time.

They are clubwomen, politicians,

WEAK, RUN DOWN AFTER SICKNESS

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Made Mrs. Dube Well and Strong

E. Hartford, Conn.—“After a severe sickness I was so weak that I could not do my housework, so my mother told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The first bottle helped me so much that I took six more bottles and felt fine. I have just given birth to a nice baby girl and am feeling strong and well. So different from the way I felt before. I am taking the Vegetable Compound right along while nursing. The baby seems to be in good health, and my friends say they see a big change for the better in me.”—Mrs. EUGENE DUBE, 69 Woodbridge St., E. Hartford, Connecticut.

The Vegetable Compound is a splendid medicine for bringing back health and strength. Many mothers have found this true, as did Mrs. Dube. There are women everywhere who know by experience the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

New Industrial Executive at Y.

Mrs. Martha Tow Kereke, formerly of Montana, who is the present industrial executive with the local Y. W. C. A. Mrs. Kereke was formerly connected in the same capacity with the Y. W. C. A. in Fort Wayne, Ind., where she was most successful in club work among industrial girls.

Lose my beauty? How can any woman endure the thought?

“But if all women felt as you say, how about the race?”

“O those of us here now have only to attain ourselves with the infinite, and we can people the world with pleasant thoughts.”

POPULAR WITH THE LADIES?

“I MET some very interesting people here—men. You know the truth of the matter is that I prefer talking to a man rather than to a woman, unless the woman happens to have some brains; and few women think it worth while to have any.”

FUNDAMENTALISM?

FROM one who knows well the philosophy of her religion comes this:

“In the course of my reading of current thought I am amazed that people who have the power to think should struggle and flounder in the shallow pool of materialism, and never reach or seem to perceive the haven of the spiritual.”

HIS MIXED.

THE following, by the way, is from a man:

“Do you pay weekly, or at the first of the month, for material supplied you for your department?”

“You will recall that you have made copy of two of my stories.”

“Now I should calculate that, according to the character of your work, you ought to be drawing about $5,000 a month for it. At that rate I ought to get a pretty sizable check. Once I filled a third of a column for you. Another time, somewhat less. How about it? Also you neglected to mention my name.”

“We had to assure this correspondent that he is mixed up in his evaluations.”

PROPAGANDA.

THIS is from one who refuses to take our moments of exaltation seriously:

“Some day when you are in one of your uplift moods and feel constrained to save the race, why not tell your readers the following innocent anecdote?”

“It's about one of those pretty women with the kind of unused brain which, when it does get an idea, is so overcome by the unique experience that it conceives itself to be the Christopher Columbus of that idea, and everybody else virgin and defenseless soil for the discoverer to take undisputed possession.”

“This pretty lady was obsessed by a certain cult. She strove three times a day to convert a woman who happened to be thrown with her for a time.”

“One day some children near them were a bit noisy and the Lady of the Cult expressed extreme annoyance. She ‘couldn't bear to have children around.’

“Haven't you any of your own?” asked the other woman, amazed, because the naughty children she considered a mere incident.

“Emphatically the woman of the cult, who had been talking of love and beauty and harmony for a week running, denied the allegation.

“‘Children? Risk my health? Grow old-looking before my time?’

MY BEAUTY RECIPE

BY JEANNE GORDON as Told to Diana Dare

“I have always hoped to be able to write a book on beauty just to prove my idea,” declared Jeanne Gordon, prima donna contralto of the Metropolitan Opera company. “The nearest I have come to it is this short article on beauty.”

“If ever I do write the book, I shall begin it with Pope's immortal line that sums the whole thing up in a nutshell:

“She moves a goddess and she looks a queen.”

And I shall end it with the equally lovely line of George Eliot's:

“The beauty of a lovely woman is like music.”

“Both of these lines belong together and make a complete picture of beauty as it really is—or at least as I see it, and as I try to live it.

“This is a very interesting and important point—that of creating the aura of beauty, which should emanate from physical beauty and which explains the oft-repeated question why professional women are more beautiful than women in the ordinary walk of life.

“The actress, the singer, the woman in the public eye, has either trained herself or been trained to move the goddess and look the queen, as Pope says, and consequently expresses that exquisite beauty that Eliot concludes is music. An awkward gesture on the stage, or even off it, takes away from the lovely line of the body. An ill-tempered facial expression takes away from the contour of the face. And it is easily seen that if muscles of the hand, neck, or arm, or of the features of the face are distorted or contracted in any but a beautiful way, no physical beauty can overcome it.

“Haven't you seen the lovely Grecian noses, delicately molded lips, pretty dimples and even high, noble foreheads, vanish in the fraction of a second because there was a lack of spontaneous beauty?”

“Now, this beauty is not merely a beautiful thought expressed suddenly because a person has a pleasant thing, or views a lovely object or panorama, or feels a sudden thrill. I that were true, we could turn it on and off like a water tap.

“It must be a constant beauty from within, something that is always there, which radiates and permeates every thought all the time—something that comes through everything we think, every ideal we entertain, every preconceived idea as well as the execution of those thoughts.

“By this I do not mean we can be or must be a Pollyanna every minute of the day, for unending pleasantness, the vicissitudes of every-day life as we live it today will not permit that continual ideal mental state.

“But we can, and must if we want to be beautiful, express beauty by having the beautiful in our consciousness.”

40 GALLONS OF CORN ARE SEIZED IN RAID FOR ARSENIC POISON

Forty gallons of “moonshine” and a 100-gallon still were confiscated Thursday night in a raid led by Lieutenant Carraway, who was rushed to Grady hospital late Thursday night, suffering from arsenic poisoning.

Physicians used the stomach pump on Wrinkle and later he was removed to his home, where the utmost secrecy was maintained by relatives as to how he happened to take the arsenic.

His condition is not serious.

QUIET THANKSGIVING REPORTED BY POLICE

Only 26 persons were arrested for intoxication and 23 fell in the arms of the law for disorderly conduct.

This is considerably below the annual holiday figure.

The Man Beautiful.

Marvelous new modes for the winter are predicted over in the Men's Row.

It's hard to believe it, but we are assured on excellent authority that movement is on foot to bring back the shoes (men's shoes) of the eighteenth century, adorned with the buckles. Elsewhere we are told of jumpers of uncommon flash, blue dress suits, velvet collars and mysterious shapes of overcoat and hat.

It may not be too much to expect tasseled canes swinging down the avenue when the robins come again, or that plum-colored velvet plus-fours will be the vogue next cherry blossom time.

It is too bad that the poor dears who yearn so for color have to join a lodge to acquire it. It is rather tough on the men that they have to crawl under the coat of an impressive life insurance table in order to have the privilege of wearing an ostrich feather when parading down Main street.

This suppressed desire for the primary and final election of color ought to be provided with less secrecy.

Even in the privacy of his boudoir man chooses the dull browns and grays and the more conservative blues. He won't even dare to face his brother ice man in a bathrobe which has a gaudy parrot stenciled on it. If he possesses a snappy pair of purple and yellow pajamas he'll look away from the milkman and the paper boy in the early, peary dawn.

DIGGING UNDERGROUND

MIGRATION OF NEGRO IS DISCOURAGED

Waycross, Ga., November 27.—(Special.)—The A. M. E. conference received its Thanksgiving sermon from the lips of Dr. B. S. Hannah, of Savannah. The sermon was in every way received by the large audience with great pleasure. The occasion was appropriate and amens and Hallelujahs came up from every part of the audience. The songs by the choir was a feature of the occasion.

Dr. J. G. Robinson, editor of The A. M. E. Review, talked to the conference about his book journal and the condition of the negro race who have gone to different sections of the north. He did not encourage an increase of his people from the south to the north, owing to idleness and bad associations.

The W. H. & F. S. society reported their work and what they had done during the year for poor pastors, poor mission churches, and in founding other missions. R. D. Stinson, of the Atlanta Normal and Industrial institute; Tom Williams, a business man; J. A. Hadley, Dr. J. A. Lindsey, P. W. Greatheart were speakers in the interest of the Atlanta Normal and Industrial institute.

Saturday night the missionary mass meeting was presided over by Dr. John Harmon, while Bishop Flipper was in council with presiding elders.

Drs. J. A. Hadley and L. A. Townsend were speakers. Drs. M. A. Fountain, T. J. Linton, J. T. Wilkerson presented their department.

Dr. L. H. Smith, President John H. Lewis, Dean W. G. Alexander and J. Coleman Lawrence will speak on leadership education Friday night. The leading negro business men of this city and section will speak Saturday night during the program for the Atlanta Normal and Industrial institute.

Rev. A. E. Person sang a conference song at the close of the Thanksgiving sermon at 11 a. m. today.

The conference is largely attended both day and night by the colored people of this section.

A. M. E. CONFERENCE
OPENS IN SAVANNAH

Savannah, Ga., November 27.—The Central Georgia conference of the colored Methodist church in session here is growing in interest, with Bishop R. S. Williams presiding. He gave one of his characteristic addresses in his opening sermon. He said in part: "This is an age of change, modern conveniences, of automobiles and rapid transit generally, which makes it very necessary that ministers adapt themselves to teachings that will hold the people in check and stem the tide of too much frolicking attendant with the privileges that modern conveniences afford. Many churches are being broken up and the poorer people are needlessly flocking to the cities. If the pastors do not give the proper instruction and urge the necessity of development of the farms whether south or north I fear we will lose a great deal."

The conference took very heartily to the bishop's address and the committee on Sunday schools and education has planned an educational night. Reports read showed increase in membership and finance of over 20 per cent.

The elders reported that very much of the migration has ceased. Cotton crops are encouraging and many people are beginning to settle down on the farms as a result.

KNIGHTS OF PYTHIAS
HOLD DISTRICT MEET

Waynesboro, Ga., November 27.—(Special.)—An enthusiastic district convention of Knights of Pythias was held here today. The visitors were welcomed to Waynesboro by Mayor Frank S. Palmer. At the forenoon session, the reports of all the lodges were read and showed prosperity. Two lodges, Midville and Millen, are planning to erect lodge buildings.

At the conclusion of the business session a barbecue dinner was served at the Masonic temple. During the dinner music was rendered by the Eighth Infantry band from Fort Screven.

The district officers elected were: President, R. L. Beethes, of Louisville; vice president, J. Fred Claxton, of Girard; secretary, B. H. Jones, of Waynesboro.

The next meeting will be held next April at Louisville.

It was in 1824 that the first Georgian offered himself for president of the United States—William H. Crawford.

GOLDEN TORNADO SWEEPS TO 7-0 WIN OVER AUBURN

Petrels End Season With 20-0 Victory Over Chattanooga

When Golden Tornado Swept 90 Yards Down Grant Field to Win Over Auburn

One phase of the 90-yard drive by which Georgia Tech yesterday rode to a 7-0 victory over Auburn in the twenty-sixth meeting of the two teams. The interference that Tech showed in that third period drive is well displayed in the picture above, with Douglas Wycoff, Tech fullback, carrying the ball.

Kilgore Scores Twice For Oglethorpe; Maurer Out With Bad Ankle

Chattanooga, Tenn., November 27. (Special.)—The University of Chattanooga football team fought a game yesterday against the conquering Petrels this afternoon, the contest being even closer than the score of 20 to 0 in favor of Oglethorpe would indicate.

Thrills aplenty were supplied by players of both teams, and the crowd was well entertained. The game was in doubt until far into the second half.

The Moccasins got off to a good start, Hinky Hane blocking a punt of Campbell's on the fourth play of the game. Kilgore, Petrel fullback, falling on the ball behind his goal line, causing a safety. The visitors were unable to get up much steam in the first period, being hampered when Maurer, star halfback, was forced to quit the game on account of a bad ankle, suffered less than five minutes after the opening of the affair.

Kilgore scored Oglethorpe's first touchdown early in the second period, after having brought the ball within striking distance almost single-handed. Campbell droppedkick the goal for the extra point. Campbell scored the second counter for the visitors shortly before the third period on a short line plunge after he had received a pass from Kilgore for a 25-yard gain. Campbell again supplied the extra point. Kilgore made the longest run of the game late in the fourth period when he intercepted a Chattanooga pass and ran 85 yards to a touchdown, the last made by the Petrels. Chattanooga was within easy scoring distance on several occasions, but lacked the necessary punch in the pinches. Wallace came into his own as a ground gainer for Chattanooga, pounding the Oglethorpe line like a sledge hammer for many yards. The big fullback also played a whale of a game on the defense.

Last Team of Houghton Bows to Syracuse, 9 to 6

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

Polo Grounds, New York, November 27.—Percy Houghton's last football team was whipped in its last game of the season Thursday afternoon by the Yellowbells from Syracuse university, 9 to 6.

Walter Koppisch, for four years the one gleaming, glinting star of the squad, and for three years the captain of the one-hedged blue of Columbia with a touchdown, but he was blanketed almost throughout by two to four Syracuse players and couldn't win alone.

Jack McBride, of Syracuse, one of the greatest scorers of the year in the east, scored all the points for the college with three goals from the field and brought his total to 90 for the season, which ambitious total includes 11 field goals.

There was a great in this game of football and he lay on his face in the straw at the Columbia sideline as the last quarter ebbed and flowed on the cross-hatched gridiron, crying as though he had lost a war for his country. His name is Walter Koppisch, a blocky built Californian, who, like Koppisch, was playing his last game for Columbia.

This Koppisch is a hefty piece of work and too slow in his leg action to qualify as a regular member of the ball-toting department, so he was schooled in the thing he did best, kicking, and was saved for that sort of work. When Koppisch made Columbia's touchdowns by a 25-yard run after catching a forward pass in the second quarter and put Columbia in the lead 6 to 3, Koppisch was sent in for just one play, to kick the goal after touchdown.

Low Pass Costly. The pass from center was a trifle

Sewanee, Mercer and Howard, was remarkable. The forwards often held Oglethorpe men before their plays were well under way. Time after time Kilgore and Campbell were the shining lights of the Petrel team, both of them gaining more ground than any single Chattanooga man. Kilgore, who is about as large as Wallace, was hard to stop on line plunges. Hamrick and Redfern each made several long gains for Oglethorpe. Maurer made one gain of 25 yards on an end run before being injured, and the score would probably have been more one-sided had he remained in the game.

Crowd played a whale of a game in the line, and Cooper and Hardin bore big parts in the defense. Kilgore was very badly hurt late in the game and was rushed to a hospital in Atlanta. Both his elbows are badly banged up and he received a terrific blow over his right eye, opening it up. For a time concussion was feared, but no serious developments are expected.

too low, but Koppisch himself was nervous, and he handled the ball a fraction of an instant too long before dropping it to his boot. And that microscopic delay, Syracuse's field line charged through and one of the yellow swarmed most took the ball full on his chest, blocking the score.

Again in the third quarter, Koppisch got his chance when Columbia, with the score tied 6 and 6, called him in to try a field goal from an easy position. It was another of those emergencies in which a man is a hero or a hum. Koppisch was called and the responsibility was great.

The line wasn't holding any too long and he wasn't getting the ball away any too fast. He swung his boot and again a Syracuse chest confronted the ball, sending it bounding crazily toward the sidelines, where one of the Syracuse players snatched it on the bound for a long run past midfield.

For a moment at the start of the second half it appeared as though the crowd at this game would see a running match between Koppisch and Chet Bowman, two of the greatest track athletes in the country, but Bowman was hurt on the very first play and was withdrawn after a total experience of about 30 seconds in the game.

Both backfields seemed to be wearing Oregon boots and the carriers were snared so consistently by opposition tacklers that the quarterbacks had to call for constant punting. Both lines held solidly on the defensive and seemed to out-class their rival backfields. Columbia gave Koppisch every chance in the world to win the game and close his career with a final feat of glory, but he was too well watched by Syracuse to get away after his one touchdown.

NITTANY LION Toe of Newton Plus Runs BOWS TO PITT.

Pittsburgh, November 27.—A roaring lion met a snarling panther on Forbes field today and, despite the fact that king of beasts drew first blood, the University of Pittsburgh football eleven sent Penn State, their old rivals, home carrying the small end of a 24-to-3 score.

Penn State missed virtually its only chance to put over a touchdown in the first period when Pitt had the ball on their own 20-yard line. Johnson, Pitt's center, made a wild pass and the ball landed on Pitt's one-yard line but was recovered by Pitt. State was unable to hold and the ball was on Pitt's 20-yard line before they recovered it and Prevoet's toe came to the rescue for a field goal and the only tally they could score.

Scored 192 Points. Koppisch leaves Columbia and football, however, with a pretty sizeable record, for this touchdown, made while the turkeys sized in the ovens, and his thirty-second in the 34 games that he played for his school, and it brought his total of points scored in four years to 192.

He took his departure from the game with his blue blanket trailing from his shoulders as one of the greatest individual athletes of the time in the east. He played with Columbia when her teams were a joke and the name of Columbia was held in disrespect by football-minded people, and he lasted through the big year of Columbia's return under Percy Houghton's coaching.

Columbia had a double inspiration to win today, for Houghton's record and for Walter Koppisch's, but the Syracuse line stood as firm as the rusty, frowning wall of Coogan's bluff and there was no going through it.

Fleming Field, Gainesville, Fla., November 27.—(By The Associated Press.)—Ability of the University of Florida's "Fighting Gators" to break up efforts at aerial passing by the "Buildings" of Drake university, combined with the telling effects of Florida's balmy weather, proved the undoing of the visitors, who were defeated here today, 10 to 0. The game was marked by brilliant playing of Dick Brown, flashy open field runner.

Neither team was able to score during the first half of the game, although the ball was repeatedly sent from one end of the field to the other. Both eleven started the second half with determination written into every play, Drake putting the play into play and holding Florida for several plays.

The smashing work of Newton and Jones, however, soon battered down the visitors' defense. After working the ball well toward Drake's goal line, Newton stepped back and booted Florida's first three-point score, a beautifully placed field goal. Soon afterward Jones pulled a Drake pass from the air and raced across her goal line for a touchdown. Newton added the extra point, making the score 10 to 0, and it stood this way until the end.

Drake's efforts, however, were not without threats, for they staged a powerful drive in the third period that carried the ball within easy reaching distance of the Florida goal. They were held though, after attempting two forward passes, Newton saving the day by grabbing one only three yards from the Florida goal line and rushing back 25 yards with the ball.

Florida again threatened to score in this period, when Chaplin picked a Drake pass out of the air and carried the ball to within three feet of the westerners' goal line, only to lose it when an attempted pass was grounded over the line.

The game was marked by brilliant work on the part of Florida's backfield stars, Newton, Jones and Brown, and Middleback, who was injected into the line for a brief period, and also by the work of Williams, Goldstein and Norton in the line. For Drake, Captain Orebrough and Sparks were the particular stars.

Providence, R. I., November 27.—Piling up a commanding lead of 20 points in the first two periods against Colgate here Thursday, Brown played a defensive game in the second half and emerged from the struggle on the big end of a 20-to-0 score.

Battered and bruised from its game with Syracuse four days ago, Colgate was unable to stop Brown's plunging backs. Three touchdowns and two goals for point gave the Bears 20 points, and a lead that was always safe.

Colgate opened up its aerial attack in the third period, but after advancing to within striking distance of the Brown goal line, lost the ball. In the last few minutes of play, however, a long pass was good and Stratton, who received it, ran 50 yards for Colgate's only score. Tryon failed to kick goal, and a few moments later the game ended.

S. C. DEFEATS DEACONS, 7 TO 0

Columbia, S. C., November 27.—(By The Associated Press.)—Through passing that was brilliant at times, and a superior drive, the Gamecocks of the University of South Carolina vanquished the Demon Deacons of Wake Forest, 7 to 0, here today in the annual Thanksgiving game between the institutions.

Two long passes in the second period placed the Gamecocks on the 10-yard line, after which a series of line plays were executed, culminating in Jaskiewicz's touchdown. Brice kicked goal from placement for the extra point.

Auburn's principal ground gainer, Turner, fullback, diving over Tech's line, a style that characterized his play all through yesterday's Tech-Auburn classic on Grant field. Turner was easily Auburn's greatest offensive threat because of his steady gaining power.

Wycoff Stars as Techmen March 90 Yards Down Field To One Touchdown of Game

BY GEORGE CONGDON.

Flashing for 15 brilliant-action minutes the brilliance of the smashing, driving power that first brought football fame to Georgia Tech, the Golden Tornado of 1924 yesterday earned its right to the name by sweeping 90 yards down Grant field for the touchdown that gave Tech one more triumph over the Auburn Tigers.

It was Douglas Wycoff who carried the ball over and Ivan Williams who kicked goal from placement to beat Tech's traditional rival, 7 to 0.

For 15 minutes Tech's line, previously of varying degrees of success, was transformed into an irresistible hole-punching machine that wouldn't be stopped and as it cut through the Tigers' array of defensive strength, Tech's Wycoff, Williams, Farnsworth and Murray drove down across the white line, one after another, until the last one was barely behind them.

For more than half that classic game Tech couldn't get closer to Auburn's goal than the 30-yard line, and with having to drop back to the 40-yard line to kick, like Williams could not quite score the field goal he tried for at every slim chance of this kind.

Starts on Intercepted Pass. It took the sight of the Plainsmen hearing down on their own goal line to give the Techmen their strength for it was on Tech's 10-yard line that Wycoff pulled an Auburn pass and began the drive that brought Tech's 1924 season to its colorful close. This scintillating drive never stopped for a minute until, in the first three minutes of play of the final period, Wycoff from the one-foot line smashed into the Auburn wall and for a fraction of a second the officials glimpsed the ball in his hands, high above the ground, beyond the goal posts. In another fraction of a second he was thrown heavily backwards two yards in front of the last white line, but the ball had crossed as he rode high over the line of scrimmage and Tech had won.

Beyond that time when the Tornado hammered down the Auburn team with its terrific, beating power that wound up with a touchdown, Tech was largely even with the Tigers. Tech had an edge all through the game, but it wasn't the kind of edge that means much from the scoring angle, and that's all that counts, anyway. Turner, valiant fullback of the Tigers, matched his goods with the staff that Wycoff showed, but the great Tech fullback had a shade the better of the brilliant Tiger. Each team was caution itself, when its own 30-yard line was reached and neither could push beyond that point, except when Peterson shot the pass to the Tech 10-yard line that Wycoff jumped three-feet into the air to snag and carry back 17 yards toward the Auburn goal and when an inspired Golden Tornado ran ends, backed off tackle and went over center to its one touchdown.

Third Quarter Outstanding. Ask any Tech man who saw the game yesterday, or any Auburn man who witnessed that magnificent sweep of the Tornado and he'll not have much to say about the game. It was the game. It will go down in Tech's football annals as showing one of the most brilliant offenses ever seen in Grant field.

It must have been that the stories of Everett Strupper, Bill Fincher, Guy Guyon, Big Six Carpenter, Albert Hill, Jack McDonough, Judy Harlan and a host of other great gridders that make Tech football history a glorious page in athletic volumes of the south that set on fire the fighting blood of Grant field's warriors of today. With all the drive Tech showed yesterday in that matchless third quarter, the Tornado had no easy time in cutting down the Orange and Black line. It was a battle of sheer strength and straight football. There were few fake plays. It was a game that smacked of the old-time football, except for the number of forward passes that figured in it.

Tech's Eighth Victory. The game yesterday was the 26th Thanksgiving day meeting of the traditional rivals. In the span of years that Tech and Auburn have played their annual classic on Tech flats, only one game has resulted in a tie and that was last year when neither could plow through the slush and mud that covered Grant field to a score. Tech is on the small end for the history of the Auburn games, for the victory is only Tech's eighth. All of the other games went into the keeping of the Tigers.

In ground gaining yesterday Tech had heavy advantage over Auburn, with 276 yards covered from scrimmage. The Tigers cut through the line of scrimmage for only 98 yards and made only seven first downs against Tech's 12. Tech was on the short end of yardage gained by forward passes, with 19 yards from two completed against Auburn's 31 yards in a similar manner. Three of Tech's passes were incomplete while only one was intercepted, and it was Buckshot Williams, Tiger halfback, who snagged that. Auburn tried seven times to gain by the overhead method, and four of these passes were intercepted. Three were pulled down by Wycoff and the fourth by Marc Tharpe, tackle. Only one Auburn pass was grounded.

Wycoff Better Punter. In the one-sided punting duel between Wycoff, of Tech, and Pea Green, of Auburn, Tech had a decided advantage with an average of 49 yards for four punts against Green's 40-yard average on eight punts. The small number of punts by Tech is partly attributable to the four tries for goal from placement, three of which were made by Ike Williams and one by Wycoff.

You can easily call Wycoff the outstanding star of Tech's game. Wycoff still would have upheld the great name he won for himself as the premier fullback of the south and one of the greatest in the United States, no matter how the rest of the Tech team played. He was the man who covered effort and the work of an entire team inspired to flashing play. Tech might this morning be looking on the work from the angle that the Plainsmen hold. Yesterday's game was the finest exhibition of team play Tech has shown this year at home or abroad.

Tech's interference yesterday was perfect. It was the kind that drove through any kind of a barrier. Without it Tech could not have staged that march down the field 90 yards to its margin of victory.

Five Auburn Stars. Five Auburn men stand out as the principals in Auburn's feat of holding Tech to one touchdown. They are: Turner, fullback; Captain Fats Lawrence, we think the best center in the south; Red Harkins, tackle; Buckshot Williams, halfback; and Dean Peterson, new to Auburn football, but who worked like the most thoroughly seasoned veteran as the quarterback of the Plainsmen.

Turner, as he coolly waited his opening and then crashed over the top of Tech's defense for three, four and five yards at a time, was a sensation. But it would have taken 11 such men as Turner to stop Tech. Even the substitutes going in during the last part of the game caught the inspiration that was pushing Tech forward. Take Carter Barron. He carried the ball seven yards on the last play of the game, just in Auburn territory, and had only a few plays before he was tackled for a 25-yard gain, in which he looked for all the world like Old Red Barron himself.

Gloomy at First. The first few plays nearly brought pass on his own 35-yard line a few minutes later and laced 65 yards across the goal for another touchdown. Compton kicked goal, making the count 20 to 0. Late in the fourth quarter Captain Hubert broke through left tackle for three yards and the final touchdown. Compton kicked goal to make the score 33 to 0.

Captain Hubert's promise of a changed lineup was fulfilled and his profound secrecy about the doings of the Crimson during the past week reaped results. The mentor of the Tide refused to disclose his starting lineup until just before the game and several startling changes were noted as the team took the field. Caldwell, a 160-pound youngster, took the position of fullback. Hitherto he has been played at end this season and was used some in the backfield last year. Country Oliver, formerly a backfield man, who has been used in the line as sub this season, went in at left guard. The sterling character of the games played by the two men were characteristic of the line for Georgia. As for defense the Bulldogs were able to drive the ball into Alabama territory just one time during the entire game. Late in the game, with just a few plays left, Walters hit a long pass to Hatcher, who attempted to catch it on Alabama's 49-yard line. An Alabama back came rushing in to try to break it up, but the referee ruled interference.

Hubert's work shone brilliantly throughout the game and he backed up the line like a great engine. As the closing episode to his great career at the Capstone, Hubert covered himself in glory as he piloted his team to the conference's highest honors. He was the greatest lineman of the day. In addition to kicking two beautiful placekicks through the line in the first quarter, Compton kicked goal, making the score 33 to 0.

Ben Compton, the great Alabama kicker, kicked two placekicks, one from his 37-yard line, and the other from the 35-yard line. In the first quarter and soon after the second quarter opened Captain Hubert shot a pass to Caldwell for eight yards and the Crimson fullback ran it the remaining six yards across the goal line. Compton kicked goal, making the score 33 to 0.

In the fourth period Hubert passed to Hudson behind Georgia's goal line 15 yards for the second touchdown, while Brown intercepted a forward pass from the Bulldogs.

Alabama defense. Randall plowed through for good gains on several occasions, while Moore punted in excellent fashion, in fact, Moore's punting stood out materially for the Georgians.

Day Bulldog Star.

Rose Day was the big lumina of the line for Georgia. On several occasions the big center broke through the Crimson forward wall and threw the opposing backs for losses. Once, when Georgia held Alabama first downs near the goal line, Day burst through and nabbed Hubert for a loss on the fourth down.

Coach Woodruff, toward the close of the game, began jerking his regulars from the conflict, as all hope of victory vanished with the rapidly approaching final whistle. It was largely a second-string team that played the last few minutes against the Alabama eleven, but they still battled with a fierceness and stubbornness which won the praise of the 15,000 people who witnessed the contest.

Presumably, Woodruff took out many of his first-string eleven to give them as much rest as possible, since the Bulldogs immediately entrain for Danville to meet the Centre team.

Figures of Yesteryears Recalled as Tech Triumphs

BY JOHN STATON.

In the world of literature there is a story of a lady who, throughout her life, was cuffed by every sort of misfortune and hard luck in doleful category. Finally, as the end drew near, she threw off the cares and misfortunes of the world and enjoyed a real hearty laugh.

Tech, figuratively speaking, had a laugh yesterday. All season taunts of defeat have been thrown at the team. Hard luck at times has camped on its trail. But yesterday, Tech threw off the mantle of an only partially successful season and a bloomer forth in all its glory. Before the season passed into history, Tech played one real game of football. Before the seniors on the team were forced to quit the gridiron for ever they had the satisfaction of playing in a well nigh flawless game of football.

The Tech offense, which for the most of the season has been conspicuously absent, flowered in all its glory. No trick plays but end runs, cross buckers, and all the elements of straight football were molded into one grand offensive.

Shades of Yesteryears. Yesterday, in the third quarter, Tech flashed back into that form which made previous teams famous. With relentless determination, with beautiful holes and magnificent punting, Tech carried the ball continuously from her own 10-yard line to the goal line for a touchdown.

That march was by far the outstanding event of a colorful season. It recalls that famous march in the Florida game of 1923. It was steady, it was all powerful, irresistible. Tech flashed back into that form which made previous teams famous. With relentless determination, with beautiful holes and magnificent punting, Tech carried the ball continuously from her own 10-yard line to the goal line for a touchdown.

Then Tech cut loose that offense that had been backed up in its system through which a caravan could be driven. Perfect teamwork and coordination marked the play of the line in this period.

With the exception of this one grand march, there was not much difference in the performance of the two teams. Both teams were forced to try their drop kicks outside the 30-yard line, the maximum distance for an easy kick.

And too, the punting was fine on both teams. Time and time again each team cleared its goal line from danger by a long punt.

FLA. TO MEET ALABAMA IN 1925

Gainesville, Fla., November 27.—

The University of Alabama and Auburn appear as new rivals on the 1925 football schedule of the University of Florida, announced tonight by Athletic Director James L. White, Jr. The Gators drop the Army, Drake and Texas games next year. Five S. I. C. games appear on the schedule.

The schedule follows: September 26, Southern College at Gainesville. October 3, Auburn at Auburn (tentative). October 10, Mercer at Gainesville. October 17, Georgia Tech at Atlanta.

October 24, Wake Forest at Gainesville (home coming). October 31, Unsettled. November 7, Rollins at Gainesville. November 14, Alabama at Montgomery.

November 21, Mississippi A. and M. at Tampa. November 27, Washington and Lee at Jacksonville.

While arrangements for the Auburn game have not been completed, Athletic Director White said that little remained to do but sign the contracts.

The Alabama contract is for three years. The Crimson tide will play the Gators in 1925 at a place in Florida to be selected later.

MARIST WINS FINAL GAME

Marist played a brilliant game against Barnesville Aggies Thanksgiving morning before the largest crowd of the season, the cadets piling through the Aggie defense for six touchdowns and a 30-0 victory. 34 near the end of the game.

Brooks was the offensive star of the day, with Fee and Van Houten pressing for first honors. Each back scored two touchdowns, and were all dangerous runners. It was the final game of the season for both teams. It was the last game Holland and Prater, great little tackles, will ever play for the Blue and Gold, since both stars graduate this June, and an impressive ending both linemen made of their prep grid careers.

Mahoney, Tiger Fullback, Scores 10 of 16 Points Capturing Leading Role

BY BLINKEY HORN.

Nashville, Tenn., November 27.—(Special).—Sewanee for the first time in ten years won from Vanderbilt in Dudley stadium here today, 16 to 0. The triumphant Tiger outplayed, outtrashed and outchattered the Commodores, stale and flatfooted after last Saturday's 16-to-0 conquest of Minnesota.

Vanderbilt was never able to get deeper into Tiger territory than the 20-yard line. That was in the first period and the ball was lost on downs.

With an attack built around speed and deception, the Tigers tore their way through the Vanderbilt line for two touchdowns, one in the first period and the other in the final half. Mahoney added the extra three points with a field goal in the fourth period from the 13-yard line.

By a curious break, dropkicks that were blocked by Vanderbilt proved fatal to them. Rives blocked one trial by Mahoney in the fourth period and the kicker recovered it on his own 35-yard line. From there an attack launched which resulted in the Tiger's first touchdown. Along in the final period Rives again impeded Mahoney's toe, and again he recovered his own kick. Three plays later Mahoney booted the oval squarely between the posts.

Offense Is Powerful. The final Tiger touchdown came a short time later when the Purple backs opened a powerful offensive. It followed a 25-yard punt by Barker, who took the ball on Vanderbilt's 40-yard line. A triple pass, from Barker to Gooch to Hatcher, reached the 10-yard line. Powers replaced Barker and jammed through to the three-yard line. Gibbons, on his second trial, hurled himself over the line for a touchdown. Vanderbilt could never develop its attack. Repeatedly Vandy backs were forced to pass some Tiger before they could reach their own scrimmage line. Time and again they were pulled up short.

In the first half they were held to eight yards through the stout Purple forward wall. Gil Reese, by a stunning reverse of the first half, traveled 25 yards on one play, but this was the only sizable gain made by the Black and Gold during the first half.

Vandy opened a slashing attack to start the second half but it was quickly squelched. A barrage of forward passes was well organized that only one was completed. That came at the far-end of the game when the

Mississippi Holds Mercer Bears to Draw

Mercer Lacks Brilliant Drive Displayed Against Florida Two Weeks Ago

Macon, Ga., November 27.—(Special.)—Mississippi college surprised Mercer with a forward passing game this afternoon and played the Bear eleven to a 7-to-7 standstill. But for a technicality, which called back a touchdown made by Mississippi on a long pass, the score would have stood 13 or 14 to 7.

Mercer played as ragged a game as against Oglethorpe last Saturday, the backfield lacking the drive and snap which scored 10 points against Florida. On the defensive, the Mercer men were unable to follow many of the trick forward passes attempted by Mississippi. Both the touchdown and the point after were made by Mississippi on passes.

Mercer also scored her touchdown on a forward pass, Lawrence to Tip-ton, for 35 yards over the goal line. The ball went high over the Mercer end, but he leaped into the air to touch it with the tip of his fingers and to juggle it a couple of seconds until it settled in his arms. Lawrence made the extra point with a place kick. It is the tip of his fingers and made just as the first quarter ended, and the Mercer players began the second period with the expectation of rushing across at least one more score to aid in piling up the final count. But the Mississippi line withstood the bucking of Dave Rice and the attempted end runs of Cecil and Lawrence. The visiting team opened up the forward passing game which led within a few plays to a touchdown.

Score on Pass.

Mississippi, after an exchange of punts, took the ball on Mercer's 37-yard line. A forward pass, Captain Parks to Wilson, advanced the ball to the five-yard line, and after an unsuccessful line plunge, Captain Parks again threw the ball. It fell into the arms of Kindall, standing between the goal posts. While the Mercer forwards rushed to block the anticipated kick for the extra point, Parks tossed the ball to Berry.

The remainder of the game saw the ball carried by one team or the other up and down the field, both lacking the necessary punch to push it into the goal line. As the time for playing shortened, Mississippi resorted to forward passes on almost every play. Near the end of the fourth quarter, with Mississippi holding the ball on her 40-yard line, Parks ran back as though to pass over the line. Instead he tossed laterally to Laird, who threw 25 yards to Berry. The play surprised the Mercer defense, and Berry got a good lead on pursuers. They did not overtake him until he had crossed the line.

Play Called Back.

The play was called back, however, and Mississippi was penalized five yards for offside, the only penalty of the kind during the game. This was the last threatening gesture by either eleven, although, as the final whistle blew, Mississippi was pressing forward with passes and end runs. Sid Ellison, playing his last college football game, was the outstanding defensive player for Mercer, throwing many runners for losses. It also was the last game for Captain Simmons, Dave Rice, Cecil Poore and Hammonds. "Crook" Smith, in a hospital in Atlanta with three broken ribs as a result of the Oglethorpe game, saw the ending of his football career there.

The game closed Mercer's football season with a record of five games won, three lost and two tied. Opponents scored a total of 89 points to 110 for Mercer.

TECH SWEEPS TO BRILLIANT VICTORY

tears to Tech eyes. After each side had tried ineffectively to gain through the opposing line, Green and Wycoff exchanged punts, bringing the ball from Auburn's 27-yard line to its 40-yard line. On the first play after the punt by Wycoff, Peterson cut through center for a 25-yard run. Following this up, Green Buckshot Williams and Turner smashed over guard and off tackle for another first down.

Tech gained possession of the ball when Wycoff snapped off Buckshot Williams' drop kick for a field goal from Tech's 28-yard line and returned it to Tech's 21-yard line. It was the second play in this series of bucks and end runs that dried the Tech tears and brought down the Tech sections of the stands. Wycoff, after a five-yard gain by Ike Williams, slipped off left tackle behind a perfect interference and sped 43 yards deep into Auburn territory before he was stopped.

Only at one time in the first period was there any evidence that there would be scoring during the afternoon. Near the end of the quarter, Nabelle, Tech end, took a pass on Auburn's 15-yard line from Wycoff for a six-yard gain, but dropped the ball when he was cut down. Fats Lawrence, Auburn captain, then and there recovered for Auburn and began an afternoon of brilliant play that marked him for all Auburn supporters have said he was in the matter of boothall.

Kicks Feature Second.

Efforts in the second quarter by both teams were confined principally to two attempts by Ike Williams to kick goal from placement for Tech and one try by Buckshot Williams, of Auburn, to dropkick goal for Auburn from the field. Some of the efforts resulted in scores, however. In fact each kick served about the same purpose as a punt. The closest either team was in this period to the other's goal line was in the first few minutes of play when Green's 32-yard punt was caught up by Wycoff and run back 23 yards by the great fullback to Auburn's 27-yard line. It was after this run that Ike Williams made his first attempt in the second quarter to kick goal from placement.

In the second quarter Wycoff, Williams and Farnsworth, of Tech, and Williams, Green and Turner, of Auburn, were able only to gain two or three yards on each play, and that never consistently enough for first downs.

As the third quarter, later replete with the sensations that make football stand out as one of the most popular of college games, started, Tech gave no indication of the great drive for which the Tornado was building inspiration. Auburn seemed to be gaining in strength in fact and vigor began all over again in the Tech sections. It looked like another tie.

Lawrence Recovers Fumble.
Monk Nabelle, right end of Tech, whose speed has made him one of Tech's most valuable players, started the period by receiving Brice's kickoff on Tech's five-yard line and returning it at breakneck speed 25 yards. Something like three Auburn lineemen hit him at the same time, though, and Nabelle literally popped into the air. The ball dropped to the ground and was recovered for Auburn again by Lawrence.

Auburn's first completed pass followed this to take the Tigers down to Tech's 23-yard line. It was a seven-yard pitch from Peterson to Green. Credit Captain George Gardner for Green's failure to get any farther with the ball. Harrison, who was on for Williams at the opening of the last half, began to use his ability then to cut off yardage in small amounts. A penalty for offside forced Tech back in the game in Harrison's place, to try a placement kick, and when it went wide of the bars, Tech got the ball on its own 20-yard line again.

One exchange of punts came in before that long pass that turned the tide for Tech, Mack Tharpe, Walt Godwin, Skip Carpenter and the Techs. Marshall and Nabelle were cutting down the Auburn men, who stayed on the ground promptly enough to preclude any big gains, but they could stop Turner from diving over center for four and five yards.

Wycoff Intervenes.
From the 25-yard line Peterson shot his pass out to Green, but high in the air between Peterson and Green, Wycoff snagged the pass on Tech's 10-yard line and, returning 17 yards, began the drive that gave Tech victory. Wycoff pushed five yards through left tackle, Ike Williams went through the same hole for three and Wycoff cut around left end for five more and first down. It was the start of Tech's victory march.

From their own 40-yard line to Auburn's two-yard line, the Techmen never faltered, nor did they waver from straight-ahead football.

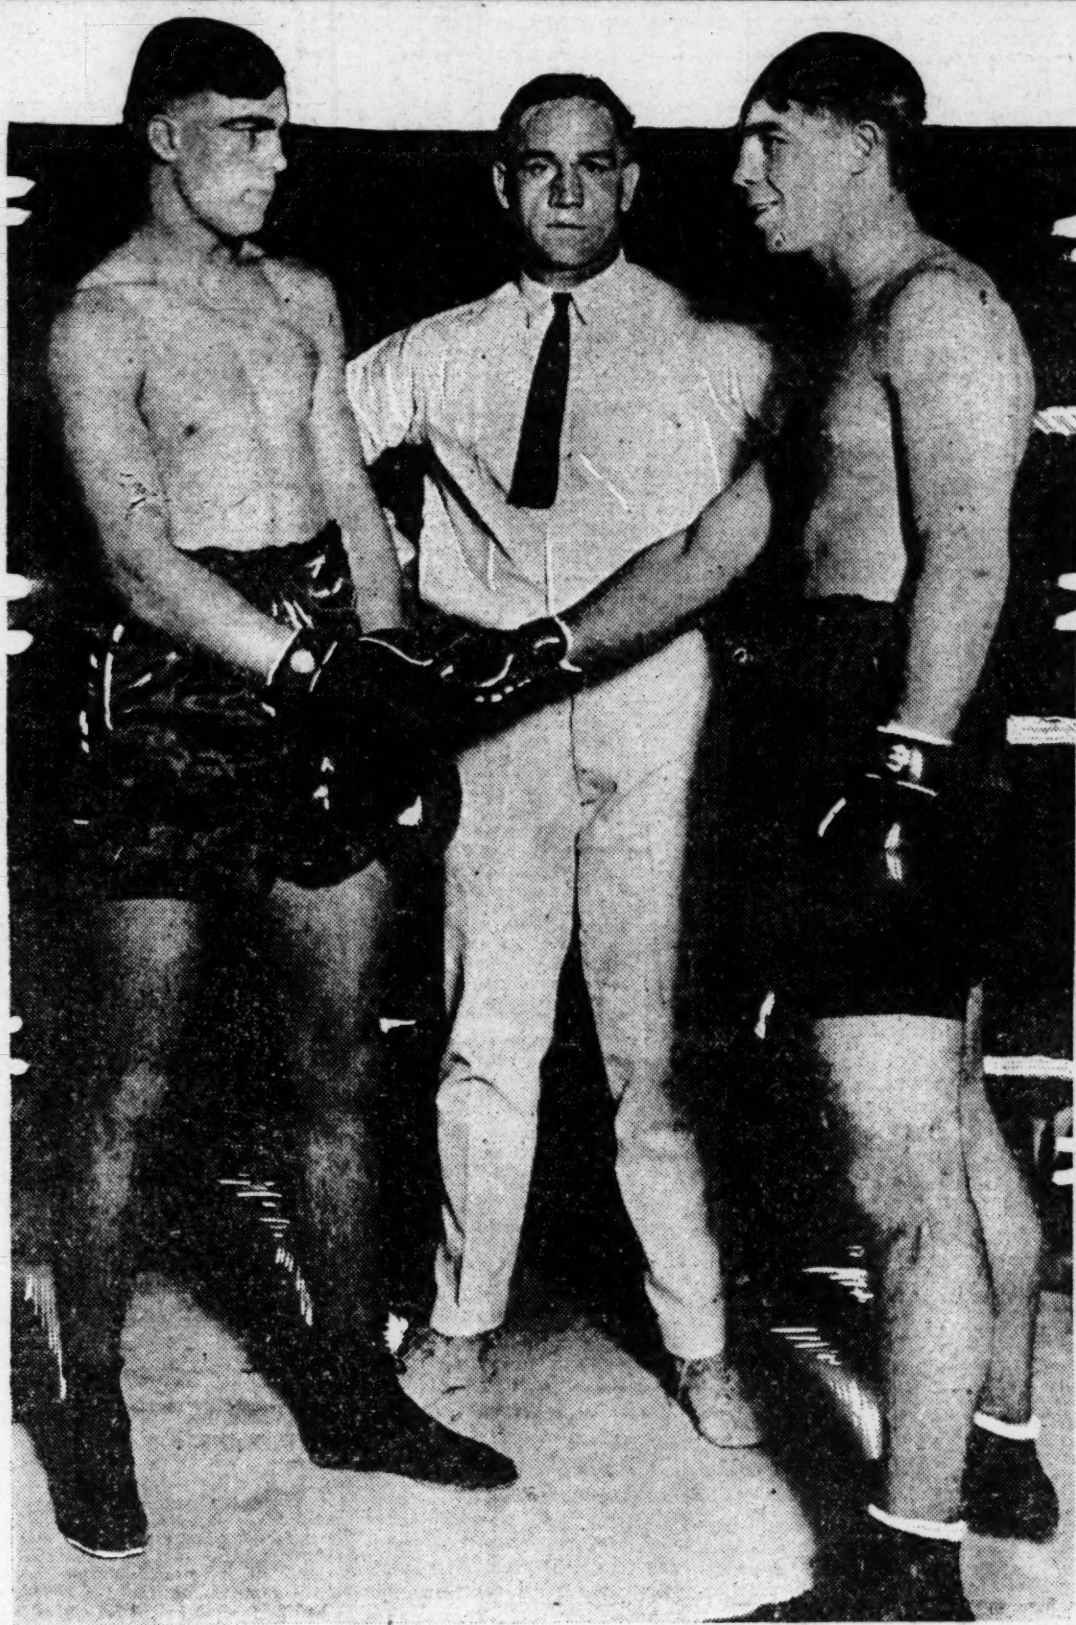

They made four more first downs to pull up for a moment at Auburn's front doorstep. In that march down the field, Big Farnsworth, Doug Wycoff, Ike Williams and Sam Murray carried the ball, but always punching zapping holes in Auburn's defense for them were the Tornado linemen, King, Tharpe, Godwin, Carpenter, Pool, Captain Gardner and Nabelle.

Auburn began to hold better as the ball advanced toward its goal and after two one-yard gains Wycoff had to change goals as the third period ended. The ball was on the one-yard line.

Thrilling Score.
As the fourth quarter opened, Wycoff bucked over center for exactly two feet on third down. On a cross buck, Tech gathered every bit of driving power that had gathered force as the march to carry the ball deeper and deeper into Auburn territory. Wycoff, carrying the ball, was hoisted high over the line of scrimmage, his hands held the ball over the line for a fraction of a second. Then he fell back as the Auburn line pushed. But the touchdown was there and Tech had won the game.

Ike Williams kicked the goal from placement, making the score 7 to 0. Never during the remainder of the fourth quarter did the ball get deep into the territory of either team. It was a see-saw affair, much like the first half, except for the brilliant run of little Red Barron's near the end of the game. Passes were tried by Auburn frequently in a desperate effort to recover from the blow of the touchdown and goal, but twice they were intercepted, once by Tharpe and once by Wycoff.

FORT BENNING DEFEATED BY PENSACOLA

Gowdy Field, Fort Benning, Ga., November 27.—Outplaying the United States Infantry school eleven here this afternoon, the Pensacola navy air station defeated the southern service champions, 14 to 13. The contest was the most thrilling seen on a Benning field this season.

The battle was fought on a dry field with a shifty wind making punting hard. The sky was overcast during the entire engagement and came near blurring the whole scene as night neared and the game was still on.

The navy scored in the opening period. It was the first tally of the game. Swanick, for the infantry, attempted to kick and on two occasions it was blocked, a Benning man recovering the first time but Zinn grabbed

Georgian's Steady Attack Keeps Foe on Defensive; McGowan Beats Clemons

BY GEORGE CONGDON.

Harry Fay, of Louisville, Ky., is a promising youngster of the prize-fight business, and if he can still argue Mike McTigue into meeting him again, ought to do just as much damage to the light heavyweight champion of the world as Young Stribling did to him a year or so back, but the wicked pals and short books and upstarts that he accumulated from the mauls of Stribling at the Auditorium last night were entirely too much for anything but a clean-cut decision in favor of the Georgian boy.

That doesn't mean Fay didn't give Stribling a good fight. Had Stribling elected to take a few of Fay's attempts at punches, he probably would be sore for several days. Fay, however, in all rounds but the first, second and fourth, was so busy keeping away from Stribling's full-sized hooks and uppercuts and right crosses that he didn't have time to strike out much on his own account.

But the decision at the end of the fight was awarded Stribling by Referee Eddie Hanlon, who officiated in all four bouts of the American Legion Thanksgiving boxing card, in the direction of Matchmaker Holt Gwiner. Stribling weighed 171 1-2 pounds and Fay scaled 170 3-4 pounds.

Stribling Aggressor.

Stribling was the aggressor at every stage of the battle, with Fay only occasionally trying in as though he meant to do real harm. Several times, when Fay made these attempts to close Stribling's eyes to the bright lights, he made contact with a punishing left jab that pushed his mouth in. Each time he settled back down to the business of keeping his mouth out of the way of Stribling's left with the exception of a few left jabs of his own to Stribling's nose. The battle was the best Stribling fight that has been seen here in the last year. It was a meeting of two well-matched scrappers, even though Fay elected to protect himself to a greater extent than the crowd figured he should. In protecting himself Fay made Stribling miss a number of his punches that, had they connected, probably would have done considerable damage to the Fay anatomy.

Fay took a lot of punishment in the infighting, but his defense kept Stribling from using to best advantage the short uppercut that he has found effective in wearing down his other opponents.

Strib Wins Four Rounds.

Four rounds were Stribling's from start to finish; in four others the Georgian boy had a shade the better of the argument; in one round the fourth, Fay held a slight advantage, and the remaining round, the first, was even.

Both Stribling and Fay put their left jabs to the face in action in the first round. Stribling tried to cross with his right once or twice, but it was ineffective. Fay's success in getting away from these crosses about evening the count that otherwise would have favored Stribling because of his more frequent and harder connection with Fay's nose and mouth.

Stribling began to gain ground on Fay in the second round by his improving left jab and right hooks to Fay's short ribs. Fay rushed two or three times, however, in this round and kept Stribling's advantage from being more than a shade. Once during the round both slipped and they fell together to the mat.

Stribling had a shade in the third also because of the addition of a right uppercut to his aggravating left, while Fay was holding to shooting his left Striblingward.

Fay rushed himself into a shade over Stribling in the fourth round by the most effective slamming he did during the whole evening. He did played a left hook that hit into Stribling's midriff in addition to the jab with his left. In this round Stribling worked mostly with his left as Fay's face.

Striding Opens.

In the fifth round Stribling began the campaign against Fay that finally brought him a clean-cut decision. He put his right-cross to work and Fay's defense of Stribling's uppercut in the infighting weakened a trifle. But Fay was still in the mood to rush in, swinging heavy fists, and the advantage was held to a shade.

The first round that went to Stribling decisively was the sixth. In Stribling opened with right and left hooks to the short ribs and worked a right cross so effectively that Fay lightened considerably on his jabbing at the Georgian's nose. Stribling strengthened a little on his sketchy offensive and held Stribling to just a shade the better of the slugging in the seventh, but slipped and lost eight to a dead loss as Stribling slipped in left hook after left hook, following with right crosses. Fay caused Stribling to miss all of his long swings, however, and only once or twice in the round took the full force of Stribling's punches.

McGowan Beats Clemons.

In the semi-windup, Bill McGowan of Atlanta united with right and left to beat Bill Clemons, of Knoxville. Clemons, a heavyweight, was too slow on his feet for McGowan who has learned to use his left better than in his last appearance here before last night.

McGowan posted Clemons in the face at every turn in the fight, and kept blood oozing from the Knoxville villain nose through eight rounds of their 10-round argument. The fight gives McGowan two decisions over Clemons, while Clemons holds one decision over him. They also fought once to a draw.

The first round was about even as in the second and seventh McGowan had only a shade. Outside of these however, McGowan held the board for himself.

Cole Gets Decision.

Pete Cole, of Rome, featherweight in the first 10-round of the evening was awarded the decision by Referee Hanlon over Young Bernier, of Fort McPherson, who was substituted for Benny Ray. They put up a nice fight, but Bernier, lighter than Cole, could not exchange punches with Cole without getting the worst of it.

In the opener, a scheduled four round tussle, K. O. Vickers knocked out Rod Hunt in one minute and 5 seconds of fighting.

TY COBB'S LIFE STORY

Chapter V.—A Skinny Lad of 17—First Opening Day—The Boy's Chagrin.

BY H. G. SALSINGER.

Ty Cobb, a skinny boy of 17, had taken the plunge. He had made his bid for a place in the ranks of professional baseball. Con Strouthers, manager of the Augusta club, had agreed to give him a tryout.

A year before no thought of this had ever entered his head. He had other plans. He wanted to become a surgeon. He had intended entering the University of Georgia. His father approved of the plan. It delighted him to discover that his Tyus had selected one of the leading professions.

Cobb also wanted to play college football and baseball. He says he had nursed this college ambition for years and because of it never accepted money for playing ball; he wanted to enter college as a simon-pure amateur.

The turning point in Cobb's life came when one of his friends, playing on the same Royston sandlot team, secured a trial with a club in the Southern league. It was then that Cobb first began reading baseball news. He wanted to follow his friend's professional career.

Writes for a Tryout.
Cobb became interested in the professional leagues. Daily he looked through the box scores. At the end of the season his friend returned to Royston and gave him glowing accounts of the life he led as a professional ball player. It was easy to make good, he said, and, listening to the friend day after day, Cobb finally resolved to become a professional ball player.

The next spring, it was the spring of 1904, he wrote letters to two clubs in the old South Atlantic league, asking for trial. The management of the Augusta team said he could get a trial if he paid his own expenses. Cobb bought a ticket to Augusta, made his way to baseball headquarters and asked to see Con Strouthers, the manager. He lost no time launching his request.

Strouthers thought for a moment. There was no expense involved in giving the boy a trial and—well, you can never tell with these boys. Strouthers told Cobb to report at the park and get a uniform.

Cobb reported at the park and worked out with the Augusta squad. The season was close at hand but one of the Augusta outfielders, a regular of the previous year, was not eligible. He had played outlaw ball and was suspended. Strouthers told Cobb to play the outfield. If the player was not reinstated by opening day he would use Cobb in the regular place.

Ty's First Opening Day.
Opening day arrived—April 26, 1904. The regular outfielder had not been reinstated. And the name of Cobb that afternoon appeared in the lineup and batting order of a professional baseball team for the first time.

The game of Cobb's professional debut still stands in Augusta as that city's baseball park. Across the street lies a cemetery and at three in the afternoon the yells of the Augusta fans, the cries of joy, the hoots and hisses, often mingle with the sobs of the mourners at an open grave across the street.

Here, on that April day, Augusta fans witnessed the entrance into the professional game of baseball's greatest performer. Augusta was playing Columbia, S. C. The new recruit, playing the outfield, did well. He made two hits, one a two-bagger and the other a home run. But his good hitting did not prevent Augusta from losing, for victory went to Columbia that day by a score of 8 to 7.

Cobb was back in the lineup the next afternoon. He did not do so well at bat but still he did not go hitless. He made a single. Augusta won the game.

Cobb Is Fired.
Strouthers walked over to Cobb in the clubhouse that evening. He asked him to see him in his office the next morning.

Cobb, believing he was to be tendered a contract with a good salary, eagerly went to Strouthers' office the next morning. Strouthers arrived some time later and Cobb followed him into the office. Without waiting to ask Cobb to be seated Strouthers informed him:

"You're released. A moment later he blurted out:

"You mean I'm let out here? You're letting me go? You're a free agent. I can't use you. My regular outfielder has been reinstated and I'm going to use him. You can join any club you like because you're a free agent now."
